By ANDY BIGG

PORT ALBERNI—The nude body of Violet Martha Jones, 16, Nanaimo, was found at 7:40 a.m. Thursday hidden in grass near the CPR round-house.

Rivard Bond Boosted

(From AP, CP)

The bond set for Lucien Rivard of Montreal, under indictment in Laredo, Tex., for alleged complicity in a multi-million-dollar smuggling racket across the Mexican border was increased Thursday to $500,000 from $150,000 in Houston.

Rivard, 30, charged in connection with a huge narcotics ring, was flown from Montreal to the United States Thursday following an extradition order issued at Ottawa.

WIFE WITNESS

Meanwhile, Marie Rivard, 23-year-old shapely wife of the racketeer suspect, was jailed in Ottawa Thursday night after being arrested in Montreal as a material witness in the Raymond Denis bribery case.

Bail for her release was set at $5,000, and she was placed in custody at the city police station while her lawyer arranges to collect the bail money.

HEAVILY GUARDED

Rivard was surrounded by heavily-armed police Thursday when taken from Quebec Provincial Police headquarters in downtown Montreal and whisked in a four-car police motorcade to Montreal International Airport.

He was escorted aboard an RCMP twin-engine plane which took off in a few minutes.

Its immediate destination was said to be Plattsburgh, N.Y., a few miles south of the U.S.-Canadian border.

Victorians today braced themselves to wait out a mail workers' strike that is rapidly hobbling the entire province and much of Canada.

The strike that spread to Victoria Thursday brought a slow realization of the inconvenience, expense and frustration of life without the mails. Without a break in the deadlock the strike will likely produce near-paralysis of many normal activities.

Mail delivery in most of B.C. stopped completely or was reduced to a trickle Thursday by a solid strike of postal workers at the Vancouver clearing house.

In Victoria, the postal wheels started slowing Thursday noon when a delegation of Vancouver mailmen set up a picket line around the downtown post office. Local postal workers refused to cross the line.

Last night they voted 132 to 46 in favor of striking, despite an earlier decision to await instructions from national headquarters of the Postal Workers' Brotherhood.

Union members claimed none of their 260 membership of letter carriers and clerks had crossed the Vancouver picket line to report for two earlier shifts, starting at 4 p.m. and 6 p.m., which normally handle the dispatch of city and outgoing mail.

After last night's meeting, Jack Bell, president of the Victoria branch of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers, denied suggestions that the picketing here "blackmailed" city workers.

"Vancouver was only trying to make its strike more effective by sending pickets here," he said.

"It would have been deplorable for our workers to have crossed the line of their own brotherhood."

His Honor's Pen Quicker Than Eye

MONROVIA, Wis. (AP)—County Judge James W. Rice now is in a position to advise, with heightened alertness, against signing documents before reading them carefully.

His honor hastily scrawled his name to a series of small-claims documents presented by court clerk Eleanor Austin, including an order directing himself to provide his staff with sweet rolls "for other refreshments for the morning coffee break each morning for the rest of the month."

Room at Tory Top

Sir Alec Bows Out

LONDON (CP)—Insisting to the end the decision was his own, Sir Alec Douglas-Home,

the tall, lean Scot who failed to gain national popularity, suddenly bowed out as Conservative leader Thursday, paving the way for a younger chief to take over next week. Balloting among the Tory members of Parliament will take place secretly next Tuesday and the choice appeared to be a toss-up between big, heavy-set Reginald Maudling, 48-year-old foreign affairs spokesman, and the more formidable fighter, 49-year-old Ted Heath, the financial critic.

Thrust into the Tory leadership as a compromise in the great Tory feud of 1963, Sir Alec, the 14th Earl of Home whose family goes far back in Scottish history, was prime minister for a year until socialist Harold Wilson, the pipe-smoking economist, led Labor to victory nine months ago.

All through the months as Opposition leader, Sir Alec, who gave up his earldom when he took over the party, had been harried by the British press and by a number of Tory backbenchers who felt he should step down. Opinion polls showed he was no match for the debating power of Prime Minister Wilson.

Bookies Say It's 6-4 For Heath

Heath

LONDON (Reuters) — Edward Heath was quoted Thursday night as a 6-to-4 favorite for the Conservative party leadership by Ladbrokes, a leading firm of London bookmakers.

Closely behind came Reginald Maudling at even odds, followed by Iain Macleod at 30 to 1.

Others in the betting were Christopher Soames, 25 to 1, Sir Edward Boyle, Quintin Hogg and Selwyn Lloyd, 50 to 1.

Enoch Powell, 100 to 1, Duncan Sandys and Peter Thorneycroft, 200 to 1, were longshots.

Men Ignore Union, Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal cabinet reacted to the growing postal strike Thursday by naming a special committee, curtailing some types of mail and warning strikers to get back to work.

The developments here:

● Prime Minister Pearson announced that a three-man cabinet committee has been set up to recommend action to keep the mail flowing and cope with the wildest strike of postal workers at some 20 centres.

● The new committee, made up of Postmaster-General Tremblay, Revenue Minister Benson and Solicitor-General Pennell, announced that all third- and fourth-class mail (printed matter such as advertising circulars and parcel post respectively) will be shelved, second-class mail (including newspapers and magazines) will be stopped in areas hit by strikes, and the U.S. will be asked to stop its third-class mail entering Canada.

● Mr. Benson told a press conference "demands by the strikers are not going to be granted through these strike actions—we're going to await a decision by the independent commissioner."

● Mr. Tremblay issued a statement later calling the strike "illegal." He listed 41 cities and suburban municipalities where all mail except first class letters will not be accepted for the duration of the strike.

Toronto Adds Weight To National Tieup

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Metropolitan Toronto's 1,200-member letter carriers' local has voted in favor of joining letter carriers in Vancouver, Montreal and other centres in strike action for increased pay.

Members of the Toronto local of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers (FALC) voted Thursday night 563 to 177 in favor of tying up mail delivery services in the metro area at 5 a.m. EDT today for the first time since 1924.

JOIN OTHERS

They will join other Canadian postal workers in an unauthorized strike that already has put out 1,200 workers in Vancouver, clearing centre for most of British Columbia, 4,100 in Montreal and more than 1,400 others in Ontario. Postmen at seven other B.C. centres, including Victoria, were also on strike.

Meanwhile, in the Atlantic provinces, normal mail services were reported at Saint

John, N.B. However, postal officials there said that while they were accepting all classes of mail for these provinces, only first-class mail would be handled for areas affected by the strike.

In Moncton, workers decided Wednesday night to wait until today before calling for a full membership vote on whether to support strikers in other places. Elsewhere in Ontario, the

Water-Seekers Urged To Become Canadians

OTTAWA (CP)—Americans coveting Canada's water resources should consider moving to Canada, Attorney-General Bonner of British Columbia suggested Thursday.

Mr. Bonner said in an interview the federal-provincial conference had taken note of certain U.S. proposals in which Americans "appear to covet Canadian resources."

Canadian water resources were a growing attraction to the increasing population in the U.S., he added, and the U.S. was Canada's second biggest source of immigration.

"I think the answer is to the U.S. water difficulties is for more Americans to become Canadians."

Signs of Times?

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Sleepy residents, on their way to work Thursday, wondered what was going on at the Windsor post office.

And striking postal workers, arriving at 8 a.m. at the city's main post office for picket line duties, also wondered.

Parading outside the post office were men with signs reading: "Liberty, the heritage of all men"; "Man's dignity is from God"; and "A denial of human rights is a denial of God who gave those rights."

A spokesman for the strikers explained that the strike decision came so quickly that the Windsor branch of the Canadian Postal Employees Association had not had time to prepare appropriate signs for the pickets.

So a hurried call was put in to the Windsor Labor Council. All they had to offer were some signs left over from this year's May Day parade—which had racial equality as its theme.

'Rugged' Talks Concluded

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal and provincial governments Wednesday wound up a four-day summit conference described by Prime Minister Pearson as "the most rugged I've ever attended."

Both the ruggedness and the rewards—at least from the federal viewpoint—were reflected in the 600-word communiqué which closed out the meeting.

It referred to the agenda hammered through since Monday as "the most extensive ever dealt with by such a conference."

PREMIERS SCORE

And it listed these major accomplishments by Mr. Pearson and the 10 provincial premiers:

- Agreement on all sides for a September conference of health ministers to "consider in greater detail" the medical care proposal set forth by the prime minister earlier in the week. While the communiqué didn't say it, federal officials made clear their hope that the fall meeting will not only consider but will agree to the Pearson plan.

- Provincial acceptance of the Canada Assistance Plan under which Ottawa will offer new subsidies for a variety of welfare services not strictly to need and not limited by pre-established financial limits.

- Approval in detail for the federal government's new criteria to designate low-unemployment areas for direct grants for new industry.

POVERTY

- Agreement on a conference of federal and provincial officials and consultants later this year to consider programs and proposals "to improve the opportunities of people throughout the nation who suffer from disadvantages resulting in poverty."

- First steps toward a more co-ordinated government war on organized crime and agreement on an autumn meeting of law enforcement officials to hammer out details.

UNIVERSITIES

- Agreement in principle that "the rapidly increasing needs (of university financing) deserve high priority and that heavy costs will have to be faced" and a general commitment by Ottawa to translate this into more federal grants following receipt of the Bladen commission report on university finances.

- Federal consent to provincial requests that Ottawa give up all but five per cent of its corporation tax revenues from privately-owned power utilities.

SPLIT VIEWS

On only one question, jurisdiction over off-shore mineral rights, did the communiqué reveal any deep divergence of view.

"As in previous discussions, there was substantial differences of view as to the respective rights of the federal government and the coastal provinces and as to the means by which a resolution of these differences should be achieved," it said.

STORMY

Quebec, British Columbia and several other provinces insisted during a stormy conference debate Wednesday that these rights belong to them. Mr. Pearson, on the other hand, stuck to his previously-declared position that the Supreme Court of Canada should first be asked to settle the legal issue of jurisdiction before any negotiated settlement is achieved.

Even here, however, there was some evidence of an early accommodation.

RECONCILIATION

The prime minister told a post-conference press conference that he is certain the dispute can be reconciled and his government is ready to open discussions forthwith in search of such a reconciliation.

Premier Lesage of Quebec and Robert Bonner, British Columbia attorney-general, welcomed this statement as "a first ray of hope."

MAJOR ACHIEVEMENT

While the communiqué went no further than to note agreement on a September meeting of health ministers, most observers pointed to the near-consensus on Ottawa's medical care proposal as the major conference achievement.

As outlined by Mr. Pearson early in the week, the federal offer is to pay half of any provincially-operated scheme providing universal coverage, transferability from one province to another and at least enough scope to cover all physicians' services both general practitioners and specialists.

PHYSICIANS ONLY

(In an Ottawa dispatch Monday, The Canadian Press erroneously quoted Mr. Pearson as saying the government plan also would cover dental treatment, prescribed drugs and other "important services."

(The prime minister, in fact, listed these as essentials to complete health coverage and as items to which Ottawa might contribute later. At first, however, the federal contribution would apply only to physicians' services.)

AVOID OBJECTIONS

A key element in the plan, which Ottawa hopes will be effective by July 1, 1967, is the federal proposal to pay its share of the provincial schemes through a fiscal adjustment, that is, by leaving a further percentage of the standard tax fields to the provinces. This gets around the objection of some provinces, particularly Quebec, to accepting direct federal grants in any field under provincial constitutional jurisdiction.

$14 PER PERSON

Mr. Pearson told the conference that the first federal payments in 1967 would amount to $14 per person with provision being made for adjustments in line with changing costs. The starting figure is based on federal estimates that physicians' services will cost Canadians an average of $28 a year by 1967. At least four provinces—Newfoundland, New Brunswick, Quebec and Saskatchewan—made it evident during the conference that they are ready to take part in such a program. Five others indicated they would follow suit, provided some details can be cleared up. Only Alberta stood in outright opposition to the plan.

EDMONTON (CP)—The body of a woman found on the front lawn of a downtown Edmonton house has been identified as that of Mrs. Gordon Cooper, 38, of Edmonton.

The identification was made by her husband, an oil company accountant. Police said an autopsy had disclosed no immediate suspicion of foul play.

Drive Planned Against Crime

OTTAWA (CP)—Provincial attorneys-general will meet this autumn with federal authorities to work out a co-ordinated drive against organized crime in Canada, using Criminal Code amendments and more sophisticated police methods.

The attorneys-general and their representatives held the second of two committee meetings Thursday with Justice Minister Lucien Cardin and RCMP Commissioner G. B. McClellan, then announced they will study a central intelligence system to co-ordinate police activities.

REHABILITATION

The conference, to be held in October or November, also will review problems of prisoner rehabilitation. Thursday's announcement said the rehabilitation of the offender has a relationship to organized crime.

Justice Minister Wagner of Quebec suggested an "Interpol" system for Canada's domestic police forces, involving the RCMP, the provincial forces in Quebec and Ontario and the municipal forces in major centres. The RCMP acts as the provincial police in the eight other provinces.

TERM NOT USED

But while everyone around the conference table spoke of Interpol and crime busters, the term was not used in the communiqué. It said:

"It was agreed that efficient and accurate intelligence was essential in combating organized crime. While individual intelligence systems exist in many police agencies in Canada at the present time, it is important that a central intelligence system be studied to co-ordinate existing systems."

The communiqué also said the Criminal Code and other statutes which are significant in the elimination of organized crime were studied and suggestions were made about possible improvements. These will be studied again at the autumn meeting.

Press May Be Asked To Attend Conferences

OTTAWA (CP)—Steps may be taken to make future federal-provincial conferences more open to the press, Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday.

The matter "was brought up this morning," Mr. Pearson said at a press conference at the end of four days of closed discussion by provincial premiers and federal government representatives.

OSMOSIS NEWS

Mr. Pearson was asked about changes in view of reporters having to cover the conference "by osmosis"—tapping premises or ministers for hallway interviews at the break of each session.

For this conference, texts of opening statements by the various premiers and the federal government were made available to the press although the opening meeting was closed.

CONSIDERED

"Perhaps after sitting through three or four hours the press wouldn't want to attend any more," Mr. Pearson said with a grin.

But he added that admitting the press to the opening meeting is under consideration.

NEWS CRITICISM

He also took note of editorial criticism that closed conferences constitute a sort of secret government, as opposed to introduction of government legislation in the House of Commons where the opposition has the chance to get its views on record.

"I wonder whether you could apply the same reasoning to cabinet meetings?" Mr. Pearson asked. "Perhaps I shouldn't have said that," he added quickly.

MUST BE CLOSED

Then he elaborated, noting that a certain amount of a government's work must be carried on in such closed meetings as those of the cabinet.

"We are a meeting of governments," he said of the conference. Such meetings had always been held privately although steps resulting from them usually had to be referred to provincial legislatures, where there could be open debate.

The Offshore Rights

THE OTTAWA GOVERNMENT, said Premier Bennett emerging from the offshore mineral rights donnybrook at the federal-provincial conference, was a minority of one in the debate. But the statement disregards that in this instance the one represents the whole of the nation; the others, almost all the provinces, the parts.

Herein lies the danger if the federal government were merely to accede to provincial pressure to give up a jurisdiction which it believes, even on debatable grounds, belongs to it and thus to the people of Canada.

It is one thing for provinces to demand, singly or in concert, what is constitutionally theirs. It would be quite another if the principle were ever accepted that a majority of the provinces could force the central government, on a political basis, to relinquish powers and responsibilities that it claims as its own. This, without the test of law in regard to the validity of the claim, would be the undermining of the federal system and the unity of the nation.

It is to the credit of the Pearson government that despite the onslaught of most of the provincial premiers it has remained steadfast in the decision to have the Supreme Court of Canada rule on whether the jurisdiction over offshore minerals—and the fees and royalties accruing from them—belong to Canada or the provinces concerned.

The instance of Ottawa being prepared at this point to consider the extension of the boundaries of Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba out into Hudson Bay perhaps will be seen as a weakening of this case. But here it appears the present federal control past the waterline is in fact accepted, and new arrangements can proceed from this point. Similarly the indication is that if the Supreme Court confirms Ottawa's jurisdiction in the other coastal waters of Canada, the national government will be prepared to negotiate some transfer of rights—perhaps out to the three-mile limit—on satisfactory terms.

Meanwhile the suggestion of a system of duplicate permits, federal and provincial, seems sensible as a means of permitting exploration and development to proceed apace and without overlapping. The lack of some such arrangement would be to both national and provincial detriment; the Supreme Court decision in this extremely complicated matter appears to be as much as three years away, although hopefully less.

Premier Lesage of Quebec of course says he will not recognize the authority of the court in this respect, a declaration that must shock Canadians from one end of the country to the other—all but the separatists. One can only hope that time and reason will temper this angry resolution, and that Premier Bennett will continue wisely to restrain himself from similar pronouncements.

Another Boob?

NOTWITHSTANDING the rights or wrongs of the case or where the sympathies of the general public may lie in the matter, the series of wildcat strikes now threatening to disrupt the postal services of this country stand as a major indictment of the postmaster-general's department.

That Mr. Tremblay and his senior advisers, to say nothing of his cabinet colleagues, allowed the situation to deteriorate to this point before stepping in to attempt to prevent a further breakdown of our internal communications system is indication enough that Ottawa was either totally unaware of the crisis build-up or was deliberately ignoring it in the hope that it would never happen.

Whatever the reason for this unhappy miscalculation on the part of the minister and his aides it is clearly evident that the people of Canada are now forced to pay for it through the inconvenient and costly interruption of their daily postal service.

Surely the last-minute Ottawa announcement that it would now appoint an independent commissioner to study the postal employees' pay demands is but a public admission that yet another federal cabinet minister has booted his job.

Help at Hand

AUTHORITY APPEARS to have found the remedy to defeat the hoodlums in the provincial park campsites.

It consists of a combination of rapid communication, more frequent patrols by the RCMP, plainclothes policemen in the camps periodically, and resident watchmen on duty day and night. Fish and game branch protection officers will co-operate.

Watchmen will not have to face alone the drunken rowdies who have made life miserable, and even dangerous, for them and for the campers.

The corrective may not be completely effective. There will still be the danger of hit-and-run raids on campsites, the shouted obscenities and the quick departure.

Along with the precautions should go a warning of stiff punishment for the offender and the publicity that their idiotic and ugly behavior deserves.

Open the Door!

THE MOB SCENES which have followed sessions of the federal-provincial conference sessions in Ottawa must be deplored as much by the members of the parliamentary press gallery—who have provided the mob—as by the delegates who are the targets of their frantic questioning.

No one, least of all the gallery members, will suggest that this is a satisfactory method of discovering what has gone on behind the closed doors of the conference room.

In fact, the public—as represented by the news corps at Ottawa—would seem to be entitled to hear the arguments of its representatives at two levels of government.

Why the secrecy? Is it possible that these heads of government deny access to news media because they fear distortion of their attitudes? Obviously, the danger of misrepresentation is far greater when newsmen must get their stories from individuals who naturally are convinced of the justice of their own claims.

Besides, the spectacle of chaotic questioning in the corridor degrades everyone concerned, and destroys the dignity of the first ministers as well as of the press gallery.

Open the door, for freedom's sake!

"No, Tommy—no action painting, please!"

Frustrated Leader Weeps

Colombia: State of Confusion

By MARQUES CHILDS from Bogota

THE Alliance for Progress has come to all but a full stop here in Colombia where, at the outset, the prospects seemed so bright. While it is hard to separate cause and effect, the government of the country is at the same time lapsing into a state of near paralysis. Unemployment is rapidly rising. The flight of capital continues, despite measures intended to stop it. Foreign exchange is all but exhausted and the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund and the U.S. Administration for International Development are saying a stern no to impassioned pleas for help.

Yet hope springs eternal that when things get bad enough, when the prospect is for bloodshed, breakdown, complete anarchy in the country, Washington will come to the rescue. Last December when the situation was not quite so desperate, an AID loan failed out the government. Of that loan, $10,000,000 is blocked despite the earnest petitions of President Guillermo Leon Valencia who has been unable or unwilling to enforce austerity and who has only just now, after several attempts, found someone willing to take the thankless job of minister of finance. The American intervention in the Dominican Republic underwrote the hopes of those who cling to the conviction that if the worst comes to the worst and if the worst can be shown to be Communist-created, the marines will be sent in.

A report from an American source, saying that plans were in readiness for the occupation of Colombia as the Dominican Republic, came nearly a decade of bloodshed. In the countryside the liberals and conservatives carried on a Kentucky-type feud that cost up to 100,000 lives. This ended with an agreement for a National Front to last 16 years under which liberal and conservative presidents would alternate every four years. That, in effect, suspended the nation's political strife. But it did not bring vigorous or popular government. Valencia, a conservative, finds it difficult or impossible to get a two-thirds vote in the Congress required under the state of siege he declared some time ago.

Conspicuously on the left, splinter parties are breaking away from the National Front. The population of Colombia has doubled in less than 20 years and today half of the population is under 20 years old. This poses an enormous task of education, training, the creation of new jobs. As a foreign observer put it to a leading Colombian politician: "It means that what you have to do in five to 10 years is double all the facilities that were created in the 400 years since the Spaniards came here."

Even for a strong government with a viable economy, plus American help that is a prospect so overwhelming as to create a sense of despair and defeat. If anyone knows the answer, this reporter in interview with Colombians in and out of the government, has not heard it. President Valencia, who is said to weep when he talks of his frustrations, reportedly will impose some form of currency control to stop the drain of dollars flowing to America. But this requires administrative techniques that seem beyond the government. Bankers and industrialists fear that such an attempt widely evaded will make the situation worse.

Others talk of military takeover in the near future, but the Colombian military is not of the "man on horseback" school, having, it is said, an inherent respect for civilian government. And as a leading banker put it: "They are not likely to take over a bankrupt government confronted by problems which they certainly do not know how to solve."

The sad commentary is that Colombia is potentially rich in resources. If it were not for a dispute with cabinet ministers in charge of petroleum and minerals, American oil companies would like to exploit a promising strike in Putumayo in the south, eventually carrying the oil by pipeline along the Andes to the coast. Iron ore and coal are in plentiful supply and large areas of fertile land could be farmed with an expenditure of capital and strong governmental direction.

U.S. AID loans already made and technical assistance—the total for three years through 1964 was just under $30,000,000—still go on. But it is a long way from that brave moment when President Kennedy, visiting here in December, 1961, cheered the Alianza Para el Progreso in a speech that drew a wildly fervent response.

Since his original appointment, he and Mrs. Vanier have shown genuine concern for Canadians who come to coast—who and what they are, how they live and how that living can be improved.

Last year they sponsored a conference on the Canadian family from which has grown the Vanier Institute on the Family, a genuine attempt to better the lot of the average Canadian.

This is not the sort of man, or couple, to be used by politicians to better themselves in the eyes of the voting public. It can be argued, of course, that this re-appointment is simply fitting tribute to a leading Canadian.

But that tribute was paid with his original appointment and his first re-appointment. The same tribute would have been paid again with re-appointment for another year, as is the custom.

To place the office of Governor-General in his hands for an indefinite period is out of keeping with Canadian tradition and too much in keeping with the habit of political expediency of the present government.

Ottawa Offbeat

THE re-appointment last week of Governor-General Georges Vanier was not surprising, even though it was in one way unprecedented.

First appointed to his well-deserved post in September, 1959, the Governor-General was re-appointed prior to last September for a one-year period.

This time, however, he has been re-appointed for "an indefinite period."

In view of the fact he acts as a royal envoy in Canada, the indefiniteness of his re-appointment would seem almost to make him king of Canada, except there is no question whatever of the position being handed on by heredity.

There has not been, is not and never will be any suggestion that Governor-General Vanier feels himself in any way a king, despite the fact he still holds many powers in law which he never exercises in fact.

(He is, for instance, commander-in-chief of the armed forces and could, if he found it necessary, call upon them to quell civil riot or depose a government. The British North America Act sets this out, but it just isn't done.)

Nevertheless, the present government has seen fit to keep him in office until he decides to leave, something which has never before been done.

Why this was done was not made clear by Prime Minister Pearson or his government.

There can be no question of genuine, nation-wide admiration of the Governor-General and his chateaux—they are probably the most widely loved couple known to almost all Canadians—Governor General, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, a man of warm feelings, erudition and charm.

He was not re-appointed (in effect) for life.

There is some conjecture connected here, of course, related to the fact that the Governor-General is a French-Canadian and Mr. Massey an English-Canadian.

But this might mean to suggest that politics had something to do with the re-appointment and few people will comment openly. Still, some do.

It is no secret that the Pearson government is doing its best to placate Quebec as the feeling for nationalism rises in that province. If the re-appointment of the Governor-General Vanier is a move in this direction, it is a shabby way to deal with a fine Canadian.

He has been a soldier (gallant and deservedly decorated), a diplomat and a statesman, performing in all these capacities as well or better than others.

Since his original appointment, he and Mrs. Vanier have shown genuine concern for Canadians who come to coast—who and what they are, how they live and how that living can be improved.

Last year they sponsored a conference on the Canadian family from which has grown the Vanier Institute on the Family, a genuine attempt to better the lot of the average Canadian.

This is not the sort of man, or couple, to be used by politicians to better themselves in the eyes of the voting public. It can be argued, of course, that this re-appointment is simply fitting tribute to a leading Canadian.

But that tribute was paid with his original appointment and his first re-appointment. The same tribute would have been paid again with re-appointment for another year, as is the custom.

To place the office of Governor-General in his hands for an indefinite period is out of keeping with Canadian tradition and too much in keeping with the habit of political expediency of the present government.

His Old Friends Gone...

Nasser Woos U.S.

By PATRICK SEALE from Cairo

THERE are unmistakable signs in Cairo that President Nasser and the United States are on the brink of a new honeymoon. Quietly and cautiously—through diplomatic channels rather than through public speeches—they are edging towards relations of renewed trust, and even of cordiality.

The wheel has spun almost full circle since the crisis days last December, when Nasser angrily told the U.S. it could drink the Mediterranean—and if that were not enough, the Red Sea. In an interview on U.S. television published here this week, Nasser said there had been no U.S. pressure on Egypt since that speech. Asked, if he was seeking more U.S. aid he replied: "If it is unconditional we accept it."

These are interpreted here as conciliatory statements.

This tentative Egyptian-U.S. rapprochement—which the U.S. administration is expected to promote more openly and actively when congressional critics of its foreign aid program adjourn next month—springs from a new analysis which President Nasser and his advisers are now making of the world situation and of Egypt's place in it.

Well-informed observers here say the Egyptian leader has weighed three major considerations:

(1) Regular food supplies must be assured for several years to come if Egypt's development plans are not to be hopelessly crippled. The United States is the world's only large-scale supplier of free—virtually giveaway—food, the U.S. has provided Egypt with some 400 million worth of wheat a year over the past three years—enough to bake six out of every 10 loaves of bread eaten here. But when a Cairo mob burned the United States Information Service library this winter, and Nasser vowed to continue his aid to the Congo rebels, the United States stopped the wheat shipments. In the ensuing scare Nasser appealed to the Russians, who promptly diverted to Egyptian ports Canadian and Australian wheat bought with hard currency. But this was an emergency stop-gap. The lesson of the crisis was that Russia could not take on a long-term commitment to feed Egypt.

The United Arab Republic has not yet made a formal request for a new United States aid agreement, but a good deal of preparatory probing is taking place. As a state department spokesman said in Washington this week: "We are, of course, aware of their interest in assuring a continuing supply of foodstuffs." There is no great hurry to reach a new agreement as Egypt has now secured enough wheat—from Russia, Mexico, Australia and the United States—to last about eight months. It is the American hope that negotiations can eventually take place in an atmosphere of calm and of proven Egyptian good will.

(2) President Nasser's present world view is a second factor driving him to seek an understanding with Washington. He is reliably reported to believe that the Sino-Soviet dispute gives the U.S. great scope for uncommitted and uncommitted action, as seen in Viet Nam and Santo Domingo.

The value and effectiveness of non-alignment and Afro-Asianism have correspondingly diminished. Indeed, Nasser now has few close friends among "third world" leaders. Nehru is dead, Sukarno is demonstrably unstable, Tito is in semi-retirement, Ben Bella has been overthrown.

Since his original appointment, he and Mrs. Vanier have shown genuine concern for Canadians who come to coast—who and what they are, how they live and how that living can be improved.

Last year they sponsored a conference on the Canadian family from which has grown the Vanier Institute on the Family, a genuine attempt to better the lot of the average Canadian.

This is not the sort of man, or couple, to be used by politicians to better themselves in the eyes of the voting public. It can be argued, of course, that this re-appointment is simply fitting tribute to a leading Canadian.

But that tribute was paid with his original appointment and his first re-appointment. The same tribute would have been paid again with re-appointment for another year, as is the custom.

To place the office of Governor-General in his hands for an indefinite period is out of keeping with Canadian tradition and too much in keeping with the habit of political expediency of the present government.

Uruguay Peaceful And Broke

By CHARLES KEELY, from Montevideo

Those who insist that it is the lop-sided social balance—too many rich, too many poor and very few in-between—that holds Latin America back, should take a look at Uruguay.

The smallest of the South American nations, Uruguay boasts a population of 2,500,000 that is mostly "in-between," predominantly middle class.

Yet Uruguay is in as dire economic straits as any country in Latin America.

Its sacred cow, quasi-socialistic government, has brought Uruguay rare political peace and an empty bankbook.

The government, which employs one out of every four workers, is deeply in debt. It hasn't been able to pay 250,000 workers' salaries for two months—a situation which probably would have sparked a revolution in most countries.

Some of the most severe headaches from which the country's Swiss-style nine-man council of government now suffers are:

- Daily operating expenses. Daily revenue is about $325,000. Daily outgo is around $487,000.

- Immediate short term debt payoffs of about $480,000. It has $171,000,000 in gold in its banks.

- Gross national product, or the value of what the country produces every year, is $405,000,000—slightly less than it was 10 years ago. With more people, therefore, wealth can only be more thinly spread.

- A budget deficit of 45,000,000 pesos, which amounts to from $300,000 to $1,700,000, exchange rate.

All of Uruguay's 22 state enterprises are in the red. For example, the national airline, with one turboprop Viscount and eight DC3s in the air, has 100 employees on the ground for each plane.

Another example of the nation's financial dilemma—and its most acute—is its sweeping welfare program under which a woman who bears a child, and then works for 10 years, can retire on full pay.

Or consider the fact that Uruguayan workers are entitled to 44 legal holidays a year. Blame for Uruguay's mounting crisis is divided between the country's two traditional parties who share the governing council on a 6-to-3 basis.

President Washington Beltrán, who is serving his one-year term as head of the council, says the system is obsolete. He charges the opposition Colorado, who ruled the country from almost the turn of the century until 1953, with bankrupting Uruguay and saddling it with an unworkable collegiate style of government. The opposition charges it is Beltrán's Blanco Party which has brought about the disaster. Both sides are tub-thumping for 1960 elections, and doing little else.

Potentially, Uruguay has excellent possibilities.

Milk production could be doubled in one year with modern techniques.

Uruguay has 13,000,000 sheep and 8,000,000 cattle for its 2,500,000 people. It has 7.5 acres of usable land per capita, of which two-thirds is tillable. Ninety eight per cent of the country's land is usable.

In addition, Uruguay is not faced with the critical population explosion of other Latin lands.

It has increased at only 1.3 per cent compared to 2.8 per cent for the Latin American average.

It has good agricultural mechanization, a literate farm population, a mild climate, adequate roads, and excellent water transport, all rare blessings throughout Latin America.

But farm production hasn't increased in 25 years. As a hedge against galloping inflation—more than 52 per cent last year—an Uruguayan farmer will buy more land with his profits rather than sink his earnings into improvement of his present holdings and their productivity. Thus, Uruguay needs 27 head of cattle for every ton of beef produced. This is compared to 17 in neighboring Argentina and 13 in Holland.

Uruguay's inertia has frustrated U.S. aid efforts here. In the Alliance for Progress, there has been virtually no alliance on the part of the Uruguayan government, and little progress.

The Alliance has had a $15,000,000 program here during the last three years. But most of this money lies idle because Uruguay has been unable to come up with matching funds for the projects it has approved.

Once one of the healthiest nations in Latin America, Uruguay now suffers from maladies which grow more severe every day. Nearly everyone admits political reform of the council system and sweeping overhauls of the country's welfare programs are urgently needed.

But to date, this consensus has not gone beyond the talking and feuding stage as to how to go about it.

BACKGROUND

By RICHARD HUGHES
From Hong Kong

The current spate of stories reaching Saigon out of Hanoi from both visitors and party-newspapers reflects a strange picture of an unquestioning and united people, and an uncertain and disunited command.

United States bombing, all agree, has so far failed to intimidate either village people under harassment or Hanoi and Haiphong people under threat. The attacks are hurting, but they have not yet seriously wounded a widespread primitive society which has lived with war for 20 years.

Communications and rice deliveries have been dislocated, and army reinforcements and supplies to the south slowed down. But life has been hard in North Viet Nam ever since the comrades took over, and it seems that the local hardship of air attack have served to stiffen and unite the people against a common enemy.

Indeed a flush of war excitement, it is suggested, is now brightening the drab lives of young people in Hanoi who have been given guns, who dig air-raid trenches singing and who go on picnic-like "demonstrations" to the countryside.

They all believe jubilant press claims that hundreds of United States planes have been shot down. They all trust—and most of them love—Uncle Ho Chi Minh, the decrepit bearded symbol of their past, present, and future.

At an enfeebled 75, President Ho, all agree, is now not only showing but dragging his heavy tubercular years.

Beside him at official functions crouches his watchful frog-like intimate premier, Pham Van Dong. Also alert in the background, is the equally watchful figure of the great guerrilla general who broke the French and who has sworn to break Americans, defence Minister Vo Nguyen Giap.

Despite his shaky hands, Uncle Ho still waves the baton over his curious troops orchestra of government. There is a sturdy pro-Soviet group—pro-Soviet chiefly because, like most Vietnamese people, it is anti-Chinese. It includes Pham Van Dong and Vo Nguyen Giap.

There is an expedient pro-Chinese group led by party men Truong Chinh and Nguyen Chi Thanh and new foreign minister Nguyen Duy Trinh, and there is a third group of sincere wobblers headed by party secretary Le Duan.

Uncle Ho Leads United People

Ho Chi Minh

Uncle Ho, it is not doubted, is today a sincere wobbler himself although in younger and less infirm days he would have been boldly pushing vigorous measures for protection of his people's independence.

It is instructive to note that the delegation which is now visiting China and North Korea with the old familiar begging bowl-like mission which was sent to Moscow and Peking four months ago—is triple-headed because it must represent each fraternal faction.

A prudent North Viet Nam party leader, so Hanoi gossip runs, must protect his back these days by squinting not only over both shoulders, but also over the top of his head.

What will happen after Uncle Ho "ascends the dragon" no one can guess. A cynical Polish diplomat, lubricated by vodka at a reception, is on record as having said "they'll stuff him with straw after he's dead and prop him up in a slow-motion exhibition for months as an old immortal."

Worst Drought in 15 Years

Starvation Faces Millions in India

By SUNDAR RAJAN, from Bombay

Millions of peasants all over northern India are scanning the skies with hope and despair.

Large areas of four key states—Bihar, Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh and Bengal—are in the grip of the worst drought in 15 years.

Unless the monsoon rains break out soon and in sufficient quantity, some 5,000,000 rural people in these states may be faced with famine conditions.

The heat this summer also has been unprecedented. More than 200 people have so far perished in the heat wave sweeping northern India since mid-June.

In one hamlet in Uttar Pradesh state 15 children died when a "loo" (hot dust storm) struck the area.

Lawyers have dropped dead while arguing their brief in courts; a schoolteacher collapsed in his classroom; sudden death has struck down cyclists, agriculture experts, housewives and doctors on their rounds.

In the affected areas crops have dried up. A farmer in Bhagalpur, Bihar state, poisoned his wife and three children and threw himself before a railway engine rather than face starvation.

The Amrita Bazar Patrika, Calcutta's leading daily, says that in some districts of Bihar "near starvation conditions" are already prevailing. "Tribal people in the forests are eating leaves and jungle shoots," the newspaper reported.

According to Bhagwat Jha Azad, a member of parliament from Bihar, parts of his state are in the grip of "a serious famine threat."

Rajendra Prasad, the district magistrate of Bhagalpur and a senior government official, says that the situation is "alarming."

The influential Times of India of Bombay reported that 1,700,000 people in Rajasthan state alone have been hit by scarcity conditions.

The railways are rushing wheat and rice to the drought areas whilst peasants turn to Lord Varuna, the Hindu god of rain, for some timely mercy.

Only in Victoria Could This Happen

CAPITAL REPORT

By IAN STREET

I'm beginning to believe it could only happen here.

Greater Victoria municipalities once more are embroiled in a row with the provincial government over mini-metro and, like the last time and the time before that, at bottom is a misunderstanding.

This time the paper dragon is the supposed 60-day deadline on holding a plebiscite on mini-metro.

Mind you, I'm not saying there isn't some justification on both sides, but surely in matters as important as this, misunderstandings of basic principles shouldn't be allowed to happen.

One reason it all happened was that the minister, on ministers in this government often are, was absent on official business in Quebec, and therefore wasn't readily at hand. But a phone call from any of the municipal leaders could have settled the matter quickly, nipped the crisis in the bud, so to speak.

Nobody made the call and on the minister's return Thursday we learn that the 60-day time limit isn't in effect, not yet anyway.

To be fair to the municipalities, I must interject that reading the minister's letter to the municipalities on this question, his intention was far from clear.

The letter says: "This is to advise you that pursuant to section 766 of the Municipal Act, I propose to recommend to the lieutenant-governor in council the incorporation of land..." and then goes on to describe the Capital Region.

This, as it turns out, was merely the minister stating his intention to take some future action. It was accompanied by a draft of the proposed letters patent setting out basis for the new regional district.

The minister, for his part, should have known any call to action would bring loud protests from local representatives, most of whom have been fence-sitting on this vital question for too long.

Municipal representatives have already approved in principle creation of a regional district to provide the most needed joint services. It's therefore difficult to see how the councils can change their basic stand—unless there is a heavy no vote in plebiscite.

All four large municipalities have indicated, wisely, that they will hold a referendum on the mini-metro question, but they want time to educate the voting public.

Education, no doubt, will be the key to success of the plebiscites. The government knows this and therefore isn't pushing things along at an unreasonable fast rate. But Mr. Campbell isn't going to let the municipalities dawdle along, at their own sweet pleasure.

He wants technical experts from the municipalities to meet with government officials and work out final details of what is to be the blueprint of the new regional district.

Then, the government hopes, the local authorities themselves will get out and inform their own ratepayers of the advantages to be gained by providing joint services.

In theory, the whole thing works superbly well. Nothing will be included in the letters patent setting up the new district, without approval of local authorities. Since they are agreed on the need, there should be little difficulty in vigorously pursuing an educational campaign.

But in practice it may not work out quite that way. It's all in the hands of the councils.

British Deny Viet Nam Visit

LONDON (Reuters)—Authoritative British government sources have denied a front-page report in the Conservative Daily Mail that Prime Minister Wilson is considering using Malcolm MacDonald, high commissioner to Kenya, for yet another peace initiative on Viet Nam.

Shipbuilders Protesting

The B.C. Shipbuilders' Federation has protested revisions in the federal ship-building program which throws government contract bidding open to all Canadian firms.

J. W. Hudson, federation chairman, called Wednesday for a "complete government reassessment of the defence allocation program to give B.C. a fair and reasonable share."

Higher B.C. wages put the west at a disadvantage in national bidding competition.

What makes Gilbey's London Dry and grapefruit juice so compatible?

A very simple fact that's been known by connoisseurs of gin for many years.

Some gins have rather strong flavouring. Others are utterly tasteless. But Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance of flavour for mixed gin drinks.

In fact, Gilbey's dry flavour has been an international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

Gilbey's won't dominate the tart taste of grapefruit—whether it's juice from a can or a fizzy grapefruit drink.

Prove it to yourself. Tonight.

Note: a maraschino cherry makes a nice target at the bottom of a long grapefruit and gin drink.

$180,000,000 Mining Scheme

Goldfinger-Type Plot Foiled in U.S.

NEW YORK (UPI)—With an affidavit reading like a James Bond novel, the New York attorney-general obtained Thursday a court order to foil an alleged Goldfinger-type plot to smuggle $180,000,000 in gold out of the United States.

The scheme, as the state unfolded it in court, involved such Bondian touches as phony treasure maps, a secret airstrip in the Panama jungle and a chemical process to camouflage the origin of the contraband ore.

NO PRICE LIMIT

Atty.-Gen. Louis Lefkowitz obtained a temporary restraining order against four securities salesmen, the alleged culprits, charging they planned to smuggle the gold to Panama in order to sell it on the international market where there is no price limit.

Export and sale of U.S. gold to foreign countries is prohibited and all gold mined here must be sold to the government at the fixed price of $35 an ounce.

MINED IN U.S.

Lefkowitz said the purported scheme involved the mining of the gold in an undisclosed part of the western United States, smuggling it into Panama and selling it on the international market as Panama-mined gold.

The attorney-general said the plot, allegedly masterminded by Donald Brewer of New York, involved the establishment of the Panama Trading & Exploration Corp. to acquire necessary documents for handling gold transactions on the international market.

Lefkowitz accused the defendants of financing the smuggling conspiracy by selling New York residents more than $1,000,000 worth of unregistered Panama Trading & Exploration Corp. stock.

It was the investigation of the unregistered stock sales that uncovered the alleged smuggling scheme, the attorney-general said.

According to Lefkowitz, the smuggled gold was to have been mixed in Panama with minerals which would make it appear to be Panama-mined gold. Then it was to be sold on the international market, as having come from mines owned by Panama Trading & Exploration Corp.

Bombs, Fight, Arrests

Plot Against Nasser Like Spy Thriller

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Reports of a foiled plot to bomb President Gamal Abdel Nasser's villa filtered out of Cairo Thursday.

Two newspapers here reported the bomb plot on the eve of the 13th anniversary of the revolution that brought Nasser to power.

The newspaper Le Soir of Beirut says the arrest of the well-known Egyptian journalist Mustafa Amin was connected with the case.

"BOTH IN CIA"

But in Cairo the government news agency said Amin was picked up at his home in Alexandria Wednesday as he passed security information to Bruce Taylor Odell, 27, political attaché of the U.S. embassy in Cairo. It claimed both were connected with the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Without giving his source, Le Soir says Squadron Leader Mohammed Isma Nasser of the Egyptian Air Force seized an Egyptian bomber July 16 at Masara Airport to bomb the villa in Alexandria where Nasser was staying.

By Le Soir's account, airport control officers saw Nasser and his confederates loading bombs aboard the plane, challenged them and four of the plotters were killed in a fight. But Nasser was not among them.

The newspaper adds that in addition to Amin, many others were arrested, including two high foreign officials and a high official of the national defence ministry.

Another newspaper, Le Jour, says bombing of the villa was intended as a prelude to a military coup d'état to stop the country's "drift to the east."

IS ARRESTED

It adds that the plotters planned to form a provisional government under Nasser's one-time partner, former president Mohammed Naguib, now under house arrest.

The paper said 35 persons including high officials were under arrest.

France lodged a protest with the U.S. after the incident in which France said a U.S. RF-101 reconnaissance plane from West Germany flew over the French nuclear centre and took photographs.

Rioters Will Invite Military Crackdown

ATHENS (AP) — Premier George Papandreu said a severe crackdown Thursday on further demonstrations after a night of rioting that left one dead and 150 persons injured.

Reliable sources said military officers had promised martial law to check demonstrations for ousted premier George Papandreu but a government spokesman said this was unnecessary for the present.

FIRED PREMIER

The political crisis — worst since the 1947-48 Communist civil war — was precipitated when King Constantine fired Papandreu July 15 in a dispute over political activities in the armed forces. Papandreu wanted to fire politically active officers—most of them Royalists.

The new premier met with his cabinet during the day. It was after this meeting that the crackdown on further pro-Papandreu demonstrations was announced.

ATHENS QUIET

Athens itself was quiet after the bloody rioting but Papandreu and Novas continued to exchange harsh words. The fallen premier called for Novas to resign and said the new government "is not content to be the government of treason but has also become the government of blood." Papandreu told reporters the government must be "wiped off the face of the earth and brought to book for its crimes."

"We are not a government of blood," Novas replied. "It is Papandreu and the opposition, the instigators of these events."

Police Chief Emmanuel Archantoulakis said that of the 150 hurt in the rioting, 114 suffered more than minor injuries. Of these, 23 were police. Eighty were seriously hurt, including two persons still unconscious.

Two hundred and fifty demonstrators, mostly youths and building workers, were taken into custody. Of these, 31 were held on charges of resisting authority and two on charges of trying to set fire to police trucks. The others were released.

Good Earnings Overlooked

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street waited Thursday for word about Viet Nam from Washington. A hesitant stock market loaded its way through another slow decline.

The market's reaction to the high officials would bring out of their prolonged huddle in the nation's capital about new U.S. policies.

Meanwhile the market continued to overlook the flood of increased second quarter earnings.

Ford Motor reported record quarterly earnings but gained only 1/4 at 51 1/2. Chrysler eased 1/4.

Bethlehem was lower at 6.05, as was General at 4.65 and Endicott at 13.00. Western Mines, Teconet, Union and Cowichan made small gains.

The industrial market shaded off to 15 1/2, but Consolidated Mining was firm at 40 1/4 as was MacMillan at 23 1/4.

Drift Continued

For Power Companies

Rebate Not Felt Here

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The federal government's decision to rebate 5 per cent of the income tax collected from privately owned utilities which are producers or distributors of electricity, natural gas or steam, is not likely to have much effect on consumer energy prices in British Columbia.

As B. C. Hydro which distributes electricity and natural gas over the more populous parts of the province is a crown corporation it is not liable to income tax so the rebate means nothing.

POWER OFFERING

Power Corporation has indicated it is to issue 600,000 of its new class of 4 1/2 per cent $50 par cumulative redeemable preferred shares at $47.50 to yield 5 per cent.

NEW FORD RECORD

Ford Motor Company has reported an all-time record net profit for any quarter in the company's history.

IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

It is different in Alberta where Calgary Power says the rebate will mean a cut of 10 to 15 per cent in the price of its electric power. This would mean a saving of $1,000,000 to users of electric power in the City of Calgary alone.

Under the mechanics of the rebate, Ottawa will remit the 5 per cent of utilities tax to the province in which they are raised, and Mr. Gordon hopes that the province in return will pass on the rebate to the companies. Alberta has already agreed to do so.

TOO LATE TO HAVE BENEFIT

The action by Ottawa is interesting because if it had happened prior to 1961, the B.C. government would probably never have taken over the B.C. Electric Company.

Premier Bennett warned Ottawa early in 1961 that unless the privately owned utilities companies were exempted from income tax it would be necessary for his government to expropriate B. C. Electric. Six months later when Ottawa failed to respond, the government acted.

NEW SHARES OFFERED

Laurentide Finance is proposing to offer common share rights which will increase the common shares of the company by one fifth.

The plan is to sell one new share at $12 for each five shares held of record August 12.

SIMONIZ COMPANY LIMITED

Mervin H. Johnson has been elected President and a director of Simoniz Company Limited Canada, according to an announcement made by Joseph E. Rich, President of Simoniz Company, Chicago.

Prior to his election Mr.

Johnson has held Simoniz executive positions in Canada of Sales Promotion Manager, Sales Manager, Assistant General Manager and for the past three years has been Vice-President and General Manager.

He is currently a director of Grocery Product Manufacturers of Canada and a director of Canadian Institute of Distributors.

Mr. Johnson will be responsible for all Simoniz operations in Canada.

At the same time Laurentide announced that the company's liquid position was such that it could operate even if it did not get any new short-term financing for a year.

There's a Park for Everyone

By IAN SMITH
Fifth of a Series

Over 50 per cent of B.C. tourists say they come here to see the scenery.

Since much of this scenery is contained in parks, it means that Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan will have a lot of influence on the future of the B.C. tourist industry.

While he has often been criticized for his parks policy, there is no doubt that under his guidance the parks in this province are being used and appreciated by more tourists than ever before.

Phenomenal Increase

In 1950, it was estimated that just over 200,000 people visited provincial parks.

In 1963, the figure was closer to 4,000,000—and it's not by accident.

This 2,000 per cent increase in usage came about due to a well-calculated program of expansion and improvement of facilities and, as far as Mr. Kiernan is concerned, this is merely the beginning.

Open Parks More

His recent legislation is designed to open the parks still more, and pave the way for the acquisition of new parks where necessary.

He has been criticized by conservationists for letting miners and loggers into some former park areas, but he has not done it thoughtlessly.

"To understand parks policy, you must understand that parks mean many different things to many different people," he says.

Various Categories

"To intelligently discuss the subject, you must make some division into the various categories of parks."

This is what he has sought to do in his legislation—provide various types of parks for various types of purposes.

"For example," he says, "a park can be an intensive use area, such as we are developing along Alouette Lake near Gabriola."

Great Many People

"This includes campsites, picnic sites and boat-launching ramps, and the object is to accommodate a great many people at a given time."

"While every effort is made to preserve a natural setting, the necessity of providing parking lots and all other facilities does to a degree modify the natural setting."

Quite true. In 1963 Alouette Lake park was visited by at least 250,000 people, and you can readily imagine how this modified the natural setting.

Fills a Need

But the very numbers that did visit the lake prove the success of Mr. Kiernan's plan. This type of park obviously fills a need for outdoor recreation areas within a moderate distance of cities.

At that, Alouette Lake was not the most popular of these close-in parks.

Mount Seymour, a no-camping area a short distance from Vancouver, saw 370,000 one-day visitors in 1963. Many of these were older.

Next most popular was the Quinn Lake Park near Chilliwack, which had 336,000 visitors.

Manning Park and Shuswap

Goldstream Park is designed for family groups such as this. Mrs. Hazel Percy of North Delta, B.C., and family set up camp for week-long stay.

Lake Park had 182,000 and 176,000 visitors respectively, while the Alice Lake Park boasted 172,000 pleasure-seekers.

Peace Arch Park, a no-camping spot at the Blaine border crossing, had 162,000 one-day visitors, while Miracle Beach campsite on Vancouver Island was visited by 153,000 people, of whom 23,690 were campers.

These are the most popular parks in the province, in terms of usage, and they got that way due to their relative closeness to population centres.

Greater Wilderness

But for those who want to get a little farther out in the wilderness, Mr. Kiernan has another type of park.

A good example is the campsite at Long Beach on the Island, which had 14,000 campers during the wet 1964 summer. Wells Gray Park, north of Kamloops, saw 17,000 campers.

These areas get virtually no one-day visitors because of the difficulty in reaching them. If a person decides to go to Wells Gray, he's going to stay a few days and see the country, because he might not be back that way for a long time.

Even these areas are too crowded for some tourists, however, and for these people Mr. Kiernan has created his nature conservancies.

"Here the prime objective is the protection and preservation of the ecology of an area," according to Mr. Kiernan. "Everything else is secondary to this."

"In these areas one would not generally build roads. In fact, primitive trails are considered all that should be provided in the way of access."

"The whole atmosphere is one of nature unmarked by the hand of man."

Many Interested

These areas are not visited by many people, but it is felt that their importance cannot be estimated in terms of numbers of visitors alone.

Conservationists have often pointed out that while very few people actually go to wilderness areas, many people are interested in them. To illustrate this, they point to the number of people who have seen the cause he might not be back that way for a long time.

Many Interested

These areas are not visited by many people, but it is felt that their importance cannot be estimated in terms of numbers of visitors alone.

Conservationists have often pointed out that while very few people actually go to wilderness areas, many people are interested in them. To illustrate this, they point to the number of people who have seen the cause he might not be back that way for a long time.

Even these areas are too crowded for some tourists, however, and for these people Mr. Kiernan has created his nature conservancies.

"Here the prime objective is the protection and preservation of the ecology of an area," according to Mr. Kiernan. "Everything else is secondary to this."

"In these areas one would not generally build roads. In fact, primitive trails are considered all that should be provided in the way of access."

Foresters Jubilant

The current uncertain weather may not be popular with tourists, but forest officials couldn't be happier.

The forest fire situation is good throughout the province, with all areas reporting low to moderate hazard ratings.

"There are no problems," said a forest service spokesman Thursday. "Generally all the fires are extinguished, being mopped up, or are under control and observation."

He said there are only 96 fires burning in the province, and that only five new ones started since Wednesday.

Chess Players Pawns

In Strike

VANCOUVER (CP)—The postal strike has cheekmated a friendly chess game between three Russians and three University of British Columbia professors.

The Russians, professors at Moscow University, are playing correspondence chess with UBC mathematics Professors Elod Macskasy, Nathan Divinsky and Charles Anderson.

18-HOUR LIMIT

International chess rules state that a counter-move must be mailed within 48 hours of receiving an opponent's move.

But Alfred Schulz, president of the B.C. Chess Federation, says his organization is ready to prevent an international chess "incident."

NEW RULE

He said Thursday the federation has prepared a new rule to assist about 200 British Columbians engaged in correspondence matches involving up to 35 countries.

The rule states that in case of a strike there is no time limit for mailing counter-moves.

"I hope the strike will end soon," he said. "It kills the fun."

Meeting

FRIDAY

Richard Colby of the B.C. Travel Bureau will address Lions Club of Victoria, Empress Hotel, noon.

Renaissance 65

Festival of Versatility

By WILLIAM THOMAS

Renaissance 65 is truly a festival of versatility which combines the best of the spoken arts with a broad presentation of music both sung and played. Thursday night's offering, the first of the season, "Now Music Sound"—blends voices, brass, keyboard and wind in a satisfying manner that proved equal to the challenge offered by the renaissance theme.

CAPACITY CROWD

A capacity crowd in the Students' Union Building was treated to an interesting opening selection by the brass choir. The two pieces by Giovanni Gabrieli, Oreste Tond and Plan's Forte, provided a refreshing approach to chamber music at a time when most managements are content to stay with the string quartet. Traditionalists were probably more at home with the harpsichord portion of the program that saw Neville Haddock prove this instrument is no mere historical curiosity.

Armed Police Hunt Gang

LONDON (Reuters)—Armed police hunting the gang which organized the prison escape of a member of Britain's 1963 "great train robbery" gang arrested three unidentified men in raids on suburban houses here.

Youthful Pair Replacing Ballet Giants Wins Acclaim for Romeo and Juliet

Gable, Seymour in Romeo, Juliet

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two youthful dancers, who took over the title roles of Romeo and Juliet from two recognized ballet giants, have received critical acclaim for their performance.

Lynn Seymour of Vancouver and Christopher Gable of London danced the roles during Wednesday night's performance by the Royal Ballet Company, replacing Dame Margot Fonteyn and Rudolf Nureyev who performed the previous evening.

IDYLIC ROMANCE

Says William Littler of the Sun: "Fonteyn and Nureyev looked like idealized lovers; theirs was an idyllic romance, which radiated a beautiful dream-like quality."

"Their younger colleagues, on the other hand, loved with more obvious passion, moved with greater abandon and put heavier stress on the dramatic elements in their performances."

"While Nureyev looked classically poised and almost detached from his surroundings, Gable waxed impetuous, active and involved with the stage action."

"Where Fonteyn's Juliet gleamed with the sparkle and youthful wonder of new-found love, Seymour's glowed with a deeper, less innocent passion and a firmer resolve..."

Of Lynn Seymour, James Barber of the Province says:

"She dances with a keen purpose, at least rivaling Fonteyn in all but the uniquely adult emotions... Gable has a similarly youthful and developing quality."

The Royal Ballet Company, appearing at the Vancouver Festival, has been alternating its principal dancers.

Joe Didn't Always Do It

Joe Kapp proved to Toronto fans last night that B.C. Lions are as good as ever when he is doing the quarterbacking. He set up both touchdowns in 19-8 win over Argos, scoring one himself, but didn't always escape. Here, three Argos — Don Fuell (11), Pat Watson (58) and an unidentified tackler on right — gang up on him effectively. — (CP)

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

VICTORIA SHAMROCKS aren't doing so well. It's been charged by a director, because they haven't had a "break" all season in the newspapers. And here I thought all the time that the reason was because they haven't got enough good lacrosse players. . . . directors of the Shamrock Club went fishing last Sunday for the Protestant Orphanage and brought in 16 salmon and three codfish. . . . a little enthusiasm, hard work and some common sense can do much for any sport. The credit for softball's revival this season can probably be shared by many but certainly quite a portion of it must belong to John Ooster. . . . Congratulations to Bill Currie for his promotion. Unfortunately, it means a move to Vancouver and things aren't quite going to be the same at those ex-regulating branch get-togethers. . . . holidaying Islanders who plan on being in the vicinity of Edmonton at any time during their trip could do far worse than have a look at the Alberta Game Farm owned by Al Oeming. It is, I thought, an outstanding zoo. Best time to go is in the evenings and have at least two hours to see the fine collection of animals. . . . The National Hockey League all-star game won't be on a Saturday night this year. It's scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 20, in Montreal Forum. . . . B.C. Lions have drawn 2,295,562 fans for their 11 Western Football Conference seasons. That's a neat little average of 26,066 fans per game, and it's likely that this season will see them break their Canadian record, set last season, of 258,202 for one season. . . . and for those who have asked, the Lions play a pre-season game in Empire Stadium against Ottawa Rough Riders on Monday, open their scheduled home season on Saturday, Aug. 7, against Edmonton Eskimos. . . .

GENE MAUCH, manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, doesn't know whether the approach of the Milwaukee Braves or the Los Angeles Dodgers is worse. "The Braves," he says, "club you to death and the Dodgers starve you to death." . . . Los Angeles reporter Frank Finch puts it another way about the Dodgers. "Watching them hit," he wrote, "is just like watching radio." . . . Bowling and curling have had their booms but the steadiest growing sport of them all is still golf. There are now more than 700 golf courses in Canada with more than 500,000 registered golfers, perhaps no more than half of the number who also play the game. . . . Promoter Gene Ahrens, who also operates a steak house in Washington, ran into a poser a few weeks back. A couple with a $12 dinner tab refused to pay. "Now we're even for the $12 I paid to see you in the Golf Digest inform." . . . "Golf," a line in Golf Digest informs, "is the game which turned the cows out of the pasture and let the bull in." And, of course, everyone knows someone who plays golf religiously every Sunday. . . . Columnist Jim Coleman might have wondered about it after last Tuesday's game in Montreal but he is on record with the statement that "if B.C. Lions fail to reach the Grey Cup final next Nov. 27, Prime Minister Pearson should ask Chief Justice Dorn to conduct another federal investigation." . . . Dick Stuart, Philadelphia first baseman who bears a "good-hit, no-field" tag, is being called "Dr. Strangelove." . . .

DUNCAN CURLING CLUB will operate at the old stand for at least another season but it is hoped that plans for a new five-sheeter will be finalized in time to have it ready for the 1966-67 season. Four acres, at the corner of Somers and Drinkwater Roads on the old island highway have been purchased as the site and club members will likely make a decision before Sept. 15. . . . Frank Howard, the "Gentle Giant" of the Washington outfield, is in baseball today only because of Mickey Mantle. Howard had just made up his mind about retiring before being traded away by Los Angeles Dodgers and says he decided not to after listening to room-mate Bill Skowron, an ex-Yankee, tell him stories about Mantle's courage in carrying on despite injuries. . . . which brings the thought that if Sports Illustrated, which makes much of its annual selection of "Sportsman of the year," doesn't pick Mantle this time around someone has been remiss. Pardon the adjective but there is no more heroic figure in sports than the Yankee outfielder. . . . The agency which bought the television rights to Canadian Football League games may not be able to produce, and take a financial bath in the process, but the guess is that, somehow, there will be at least some telecast CFL action before the season is out. . . . Radio-broadcasts of the home games of the B.C. Lions will go out over station CKNW, which is 980 on your dial. . . . Victoria Curling Club enjoyed its best financial season for a few years last season, a fine managerial debut for Tom Dickson. . . . Keith Dagg has switched from the oil business to radio because, one hears, he didn't want to leave these shores. A good reason. . . . "It had to happen" was the reaction on seeing the picture of the spear-fisherman who was mistaken for a fish. Even under water there'll be hunters who shoot first and look later.

Clear Sailing for Lions With Kapp at the Helm

TORONTO — With Joe Kapp at the throttle long enough for two touchdown marches, B.C. Lions looked quite capable of defending the Grey Cup here Thursday night as they eased to a 19-8 victory over Toronto Argonauts in an exhibition Canadian Football League game played before 19,637 fans.

Kapp transformed a club which had looked thoroughly inept on offence without him against Montreal Alouettes on Tuesday night into an outfit which looked the part of Canadian champions.

He was in there as soon as the Lions had taken the opening kick-off back to their 33-yard line, and he marched them to a touchdown in less than five minutes without giving up the ball.

DOES IT AGAIN
Kapp was back for much of the third quarter after being relieved by Mel Melin, and again brought the Lions a touchdown.

He scored this one himself on a one-yard plunge. Fullback Bob Swift travelled the same distance for the first one.

Pete Kempf kicked one convert and field goals of 25 yards in the second and four quarters for the other points.

Toronto got a single point in the second quarter and a six-yard touchdown by Jackie Parker, converted by John Vilunas, in the last minute of the game.

IN CONTROL
Kapp was his masterful self when he was in the game, mixing up his plays almost perfectly.

He completed his first four passes, mixing in plunging by Swift and running by Lou Holland, and going for 11 yards once himself, in the first touchdown march. It needed only 12 plays.

The second march, featuring mainly passes and some good gains by Amos Bullocks, also went 77 yards and needed just seven plays.

In between Kapp's appearances, the Lions continued experimentation, but not to the extent they did in their first two exhibition games.

Perhaps the biggest result was a promising two-way battle for the open position at offence halfback.

Holland, a holdover who saw little service last season, started and came up with a fine performance. He caught three passes, two in the first touchdown march.

His effort seemed to spark Bullocks, who had been somewhat of a disappointment, and the ex-Dallas player showed his best running to date when his chance came.

The Lions' vaunted defence team showed all of its ability, bothered only by Parker, who was the best of the three Toronto quarterbacks and also excelled in the defence backfield. Argos failed to complete a pass and had only 23 yards rushing in the first half under the quarterbacking of ex-NFL veteran Lamar McHan and Carl Sweeten.

That forced coach Bob Shaw to try Parker, and the veteran showed a lot of his old-time ability. He completed seven of 13 passes for 55 yards and worried the Lions on his roll-outs.

Late in the game, Parker took his club 66 yards in 12 plays for their major score.

BIG DIFFERENCE
Argos wound up with 15 first downs, 11 of them in the second half, on a total offence of 172 yards. The Lions made 24 first downs, gained 141 yards in the air and 172 on the ground. Kapp completed seven of 12 passes for 82 yards, Melin hit on four of nine for 59 yards.

Unreformed

Cookie Gilchrist, professional football's most-travelled star, remains as elusive as ever to his own team. Denver Broncos, who got him a few months ago in a trade with Buffalo Bills, looked for him in vain when their training camp opened yesterday. Gilchrist was reported still in New York, where he does promotional work for a beer company.

Juniors Hold On

Victoria Junior Shamrocks took another chunk out of New Westminster's lead in the Inter-City Junior Lacrosse League last night, and set the stage for a crucial meeting Sunday.

The young Rocks whipped Coquitlam, 13-3, at Memorial Arena, moving back within four points of New Westminster. They play the leaders Sunday on the mainland, one of two games they have left with New Westminster.

Ron Zilkke scored four goals for Shamrocks. Ranjit Dillon added two, and the others went to John Stewart, Ken Alexander, Vern Black, John Lauvaas, Tom Churchill, Pat Green and Don Munroe.

Dennis Rigby scored twice and Kevin Parsons once for Admirals.

He finished the night with six points, putting him in second place in league scoring with 65. Teammate Paul Parnell still leads with 87.

Ted Lieblich scored twice for Shamrocks and singles went to Billy Gray, Terry Davis, Ron Jay and Bill Russell.

Skip Chapman turned in an outstanding game in goal for the Rocks, making 37 stops, including 11 on Parnell and four on Sepka. He was replaced with four minutes left by juvenile goaltender George Grover.

Braves Whoop It Up As Quarry in Sight

Milwaukee Braves are still flexing an impressive set of muscles, and for the second straight night it was Los Angeles Dodgers who got their lumps.

Hank Aaron and Rico Carty homered in a four-run first inning last night and the Braves went on to beat the Dodgers, 5-2, for their 10th straight victory in the National League.

Cincinnati Reds, who spoiled Warren Spahn's debut as a Giant by beating San Francisco,

5-4, thus moved to within 2½ games of the league-leading Dodgers, with the Braves three games back.

Aaron's 21st homer, following singles by Felipe Alou and Mack ninth, pinning the defeat on Frank Linzy.

But if the Milwaukee hitters were impressive, Ed Bailey was fantastic for Chicago Cubs.

DOUBLES PRODUCTION
Bailey, who had driven in exactly eight runs in his first 53 games this season, brought home eight more last night with two homers, one a grand-slam, one with two men on plus two singles as the Cubs downed Philadelphia, 10-6.

And speaking of muscles, the Minnesota Twins were at it again in the American League, beating Boston, 11-5, as Bob Allison hit his 13th and 14th homers and Harmon Killebrew his 19th.

Baltimore Orioles dropped 4½ games behind the front-running Twins losing 8-2 to Kansas City.

TEEN AGAIN
Home runs by Tom Tresh and Bobby Richardson gave Whitey Ford all the help he needed to lead New York Yankees to a 3-1 victory over Chicago White Sox. Ford gave up seven hits on the way to his 11th victory.

At Washington, pitcher Pete Richter drove in three runs with a single and a bunt, sparking the Senators to a 5-1 win over Los Angeles.

Cellar Door Almost Closed As Rocks Go Down Again

NEW WESTMINSTER — Cliff Sepka scored five goals here last night to bring New Westminster O'Keefe's from behind and give them a 12-4 victory over Victoria Shamrocks in the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

Sepka scored twice to open the second quarter when his club trailed 3-1, and twice to start the third quarter to put New Westminster ahead to stay.

He finished the night with six points, putting him in second place in league scoring with 65. Teammate Paul Parnell still leads with 87.

Ted Lieblich scored twice for Shamrocks and singles went to Billy Gray, Terry Davis, Ron Jay and Bill Russell.

Skip Chapman turned in an outstanding game in goal for the Rocks, making 37 stops, including 11 on Parnell and four on Sepka. He was replaced with four minutes left by juvenile goaltender George Grover.

Sport Is Gone from Hunting Famed Outdoorsman Claims

By AL McNEIL
MONTREAL (CP) — Modern transportation has taken all the sport out of hunting, says Paul Provencher, a leading Canadian authority on wildlife.

"I don't call it sport when you can hire a helicopter to hunt down moose. Some of these people actually shoot the animals from the aircraft. They have lost the art of stalking. They have to take the horns home to prove they are hunters."

Provencher, 63, is a skilled hunter with bow and arrow, a fisherman and a wildlife painter, author and photographer. He has spent much of his life in the woods and has earned his living at times as a 20th century voyager and courier de bois.

He travelled the woods for years as chief forestry officer for the Quebec North Shore Paper Co. and now acts as an ambassador and lecturer for the firm, helping Canadians learn about their outdoor heritage.

There is little hope of conserving wildlife through education alone, Provencher says. Laws still needed strengthening.

"Unless provincial and federal governments exercise strong control, I can't see education alone stopping the present massacre of our wildlife. If they don't make our laws stronger, as has to be done in some European countries such as Poland, poaching and killing will continue."

In 1953 Provencher wrote a book, I Live in the Woods, and it was praised by the late Col. R. R. McCormick, founder of the Quebec City, Que., and publisher of the Quebec Tribune, who said:

"It is so valuable that I think it should be made available to everyone entering the woods, not only to save themselves trouble and hardship but also their lives."

The Canadian Army had earlier thought enough of Provencher's knowledge to requisition him in the Second World War to train troops in bush survival techniques.

Provencher's interest in the outdoors dates from his youth. Fidler and Wallace Milligan of when he spent summers on a farm near Trois-Rivières, the family summer home. He was 12 and his father wanted him to be a farmer or lawyer.

Instead, Paul chose the footsteps of an early ancestor, Sebastian Provencher, who in 1673 accompanied Father Albanel on the first expedition to travel by way of Lake St. John to Hudson Bay.

Provencher persuaded his father to buy him a shotgun and took to hunting groundhogs for their pelts, worth 50 cents each. At 19 he convinced his father he was "not cut out to be a lawyer" and was permitted to accompany a survey party to the Gaspé Peninsula.

Provencher continued to work summers with survey crews and in logging camps while studying for his bachelor of science degree at Laval University, then after graduation turned to forestry work.

In 1928 he took a government job as assistant district forester for the St. Maurice district north of Trois-Rivières and explored every river by canoe and portage between 1928 and 1930.

The following year he took charge of the Baie Comeau survey for the Quebec paper firm.

Port Alberni Cyclist Ready for Race

MONTREAL (CP) — A 19-year-old student from Port Alberni, B.C., with a yearning to pedal will be one of some 60 cyclists starting the 1,500-mile tour du St. Laurent bicycle race Sunday.

What makes Clifford Neyell unique among the starters is that he has just completed a trip by bicycle from Vancouver to Newfoundland and back to Montreal, a distance of more than 4,000 miles.

Neyell left Vancouver May 28 and arrived in St. John's

July 10, but, he said, "I didn't cycle all the way. I walked for 75 miles in Newfoundland because the roads were so bad."

Four of the eight flat tires which Neyell's $380 Italian racing bicycle suffered on the cross-country trip were recorded on Newfoundland's roads.

The husky young rider, bronzed by the wind and sun, looked well and fit as he explained that entering the road race through the St. Lawrence region of Quebec province "was only at the back of my mind when I left Vancouver. What decided me was a poster which said "see you at the tour du St. Laurent."

The youthful westerner does not entertain any hopes of winning the race through the hilly countryside as he will be competing against top Canadian and foreign masters of the bicycle.

Eight European teams and one from Guadeloupe in the West Indies are among the crack squads entered in the 12th annual running of the tour which is to start Sunday at Matane on the Gaspé Peninsula and end Aug. 8 at Quebec City.

Neyell is one of two independents competing in the race. The other is Garry Dejong of Calgary.

Neyell said he does not expect the race to be quite as hectic as his cross-country trip, which featured food poisoning in Newfoundland, the charge of a bull moose in Northern Ontario and nights spent sleeping in police stations across the country.

Firm Borrows Navy Stock

A system by which a Victoria wholesale firm borrowed stock from the navy when its own supplies ran low was described Thursday in Esquimalt magistrate's court.

The firm was E. A. Morris Limited, 3196 Douglas, named in one of five charges against two HMCS Naden men.

Defendants are Lieut. Eric Haywood, 2150 Allenby, and Charles Whyte, 8034 East Saanich. They face four charges of fraud and one of theft over $50, alleged to have occurred between March 7, 1963, and Oct. 13, 1964.

FORMER HEAD

Lieut. Haywood is former head of the Naden photographic department. Whyte, a civilian employee, was in charge of stores.

Both were transferred to other departments in Naden when an RCMP investigation into the alleged incidents began last fall.

One of the fraud charges alleges that between Aug. 1, 1963, and December the same year, Haywood and Whyte unlawfully obtained a photographic enlarger by means of $75 in official funds paid to E. A. Morris Limited.

SALESMAN TALKS

Thursday, fourth day of the preliminary hearing into the charges, an E. A. Morris salesman testified about his dealings with the defendants.

He was Robert Metcalfe, manager of the firm's photographic department, who said that on occasions when his supplies of stock ran low, he had borrowed stock from Whyte.

The value of this stock would then be credited to the navy against an invoice for stock supplied previously to the navy by his firm.

INVOICE IDENTIFIED

One such invoice, concerning a box of photographic paper requested from Whyte, was identified by Mr. Metcalfe during his testimony.

He said Haywood brought material into him "very infrequently." When he rang up Naden to request various items, it was usually Whyte he spoke to.

Under cross-examination by Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, counsel for Haywood, Mr. Metcalfe described the goods received from the navy as being in the nature of loans.

"WE TRIED"

"We tried to keep it square at the end of each month," he added.

Mr. Metcalfe also said he knew nothing about the enlarger alleged to have been obtained by the defendants.

Cross-examined by W. E. Whitley, counsel for Whyte, Mr. Metcalfe said only a "very small" percentage of the firm's business was with the navy.

The hearing was adjourned until Monday.

Quebec

Visitors Treated By City

Liquor, wine and even coffee have been served at receptions which have become a part of the civic way of life since the opening of the new city hall complex but Thursday, for the first time, soft drinks were offered.

Occasion was the visit of a dozen students from Quebec who are returning the visit of a dozen local youngsters sent to Quebec for a two-week stay during the early part of the month.

The Quebec students and their hosts gathered in the aldermen's lounge back of the council chamber for a pop-and-chips refreshment pause before a tour of the city hall complex and Centennial Square.

They then left, by bus, to see the undersea gardens and have lunch at the Oak Bay Marina.

The same sort of party will be held today when 32 youngsters from the Children's International Village at Shawinigan Lake visit city hall to be shown the square and have a "drink" on the city.

Such entertainment is arranged by a council committee under the chairmanship of Ald. Robert Baird.

Father Slaps Baby, Gets Six Months

Parents must understand that disciplining infant children does not include striking them, Magistrate Ouster told Jones Thursday.

DETERRENT ASPECT

He said a sentence should never be venal or retributive, but this was one of those cases where the deterrent aspect had to be considered.

Having considered Jones' presentence report, he felt the man should be sent to an institution where he could receive medical treatment.

Jones was accordingly sentenced to six months' detention, six months indefinite, at the young offenders unit.

SAANICH COURT

In Saanich court, a woman driver was fined $200 and had her licence suspended for failing to remain at the scene of an accident that sent two small boys to hospital.

She was Mrs. Ellen Jamieson, 5019 Cordova Bay Road, convicted at an earlier hearing.

The accident occurred July 2 on Cedar Hill Cross Road near the Cedar Hill Road intersection. Two boys, aged 6 and 7, rode their bicycles into Mrs. Jamieson's car.

Both boys were injured in the accident and had to be given hospital treatment.

It was Burton's third conviction this year for being uninsured. His record, which includes two careless driving convictions, was described as "disgraceful" by the magistrate.

You think your old fridge is "good enough"? Wait till you see today's big beauties. They're about 40% larger on the inside (hardly any bigger outside, thanks to new thin-wall construction). And the extra space is nicely distributed. Shelf storage is more flexible and there's extra height in the door area for tall bottles. Many models have pull-out, adjustable or revolving shelves. The freezer area is much larger. Has lots more room for frozen foods. And it's colder. Keeps ice cream firm, freezes other foods fast.

Defrosting? Forget it. The new refrigerators are either frost-free or self-defrosting. Some even have automatic ice cube makers. Still think you're happy with the old box? Fine. But don't dare go near your appliance dealer's. Especially now when he's offering such attractive values.

Legal Aspects of Mail-less C ty

Pay Bills in Person, If Possible

They Won't Foreclose If Payment Held Up

You won't lose the farm if the mortgage payment is late because of the mailmen's strike, but don't take advantage of the situation.

That's the opinion of a Victoria lawyer commenting for the benefit of everyone who does business by mail.

Take the example of a mortgage installment being made to an out-of-town firm.

"If he (the mortgagee) deals with it in the same way he has normally made his payments, and if the mail isn't delivered, then I'm sure no court would penalize him," said the lawyer.

"I don't think any judge would grant a foreclosure order under the circumstances."

He noted that many agreements have a clause providing for time extensions when a strike or act of God intervenes.

But, he added:

"Anyone would be ill-advised to take advantage of this situation, either on the giving or receiving end."

He suggested that it's up to the individual to pay a bill in person if it is possible to do so. That means a trip to the telephone or Hydro office if the strike lasts.

Discounts for early payment (or penalties for tardiness) are a matter of individual company policy, said the lawyer.

"From a strictly legalistic point of view, they'd be within their rights to penalize for late payment," the lawyer observed.

"But it would be very poor public relations."

Banks and other financial institutions yesterday were busy devising methods of moving their valuables during the strike.

In some cases banks are using the ferries to move documents to the Vancouver clearing house. Others are using air freight. Mail that can only be moved by registered post is a particular problem for the bankers.

One investment firm says it will not ship securities while the strike lasts.

"We move everything by registered mail normally, and there is no comparable service available either by air freight or by rail," said the manager of one investment house. "People will just have to be patient if they don't get delivery of their securities on time."

While air freight is available, air carriers charge heavily for the insurance of valuables. There is a charge of $2 per $1,000 on the Vancouver-Victoria run.

Some investment houses move hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of securities a day.

"We would be ruined if we attempted to send them by insured air express," he said.

One banker said real hardship will begin early next week if the strike is not settled by then.

Old age security cheques normally go into the mail in the last week of the month.

"Many of our customers depend on this money for their existence," said one bank manager. "I expect we will get many applications for temporary loans if the cheques don't come through." Old age pension cheques for the entire province are printed in the post office building. Between 35,000 and 40,000 of them normally go to Victorians.

Today a handful of supervisors are attempting to sort the cheques, but they can't be moved even if the job is done.

Assistant postmaster Dwight Green said he doubted that the cheques could be distributed to Victoria pensioners even if they came in to the wickets. There isn't enough staff to hand them out, he said.

Special Truck Carrying Mail for Provincial Government

A special truck took the provincial government's inter-departmental mail to Vancouver Thursday night.

The move was designed to avert a major tie-up in government business as a result of the postal strike.

Normally government correspondence is carried by ordinary mail through the government post office in the legislative buildings. The volume averages some 80,000 pieces daily.

Officials said the government had planned to bring in the special mail truck delivery anyway at the end of August. The date was advanced to cope with the strike situation.

Problems are still expected to arise, however, if the strike continues for long.

The provincial health department averages some 1,600 specimens each week mailed to the provincial laboratories in Vancouver for analysis. They come from all parts of the province, and if delayed, could be useless.

There is also vaccine to be sent to baby clinics throughout the province and specimens, antibiotics and records relating to the provincial government's VD control program. All will be delayed unless some other means of dispatch are worked out.

Early in August some 80,000 welfare and pension cheques are due to be mailed from government offices. And next week there are more than 5,000 superannuation cheques to be mailed.

Mini-Metro for Municipalities

Year-End Vote Okay with Campbell

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

Greater Victoria municipalities will be able to hold December plebiscites on mini-metro function if they wish.

This emerged Thursday as Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell, back from a business trip to Quebec, clarified the government's stand.

He stressed that, despite municipal fears to the contrary, the 60-day period for holding of a referendum on matters relating to regional district services hasn't yet begun.

And in letters which were to have reached local municipal leaders by mail, but now are probably delayed by the postal strike, the minister urged speedy conclusion of detailed planning and launching of an educational campaign.

Mr. Campbell said the municipalities were supplied with a draft of the proposed letters patent for a capital region district to facilitate working out of final details. These were to be worked out at meetings of technical staffs.

"I have no preconceived notion on whether a vote should be held on this question or on what date such a vote should be held," the minister said. "This is purely a local matter. We appear to be heading for a December vote and my department will fit in with whatever plans the municipalities have in this regard."

Declaration in Fall

This would mean that the official declaration of the 60-day deadline could come sometime early in October giving local and government officials sufficient time to work out details of the plan for a new regional district.

The right of consultation was clearly given to the municipalities, Mr. Campbell said, and this undertaking will not be withdrawn.

In his letter to municipal leaders, reiterating the government's stand, the minister urged a quick start on detailed planning of the final letters patent "so that all parties concerned, including the public, can have a full understanding of what the final arrangement will be."

He noted that all the municipalities concerned have approved mini-metro in principle.

The government also hopes, the minister said, that if one or more municipalities decides to hold a plebiscite on any mini-metro function they will undertake a "widespread" educational program.

Her Eye

Loss of an eye and other injuries are attributed to negligence on the part of the City of Victoria, in a letter to the city clerk from solicitors for Mrs. Florence May Hawkes.

Mrs. Hawkes was watching a lacrosse game on the evening of June 2, when a ball came through the steel mesh between the lacrosse floor and the spectators, the letter alleges.

She was struck in the left eye which was subsequently lost and also suffered other injuries, the solicitors' letter says.

Mrs. Hawkes, the letter states, alleges that the corporation was negligent in permitting the steel mesh to be in such disrepair as to permit the passage of lacrosse balls through it.

The game was between the Victoria Shamrocks and the Coquitlam Adanacs.

Blasting at Museum Site Not Too Loud—Excavator

A spokesman for the company handling the new Victoria Museum excavation denied Thursday that the blasting has been unnecessarily loud.

Manager Peter Hartnell of the new Queen Victoria Hotel had complained that blasts had "shaken the whole building."

"I've seen people at the desk turn white as a sheet with this idiotic blasting," he said.

SINCE JUNE 25 He said the blasting, which has been going on since his building opened June 25, is "two or three times" as loud as it should be.

"I'm in the business," said Mr. Hartnell, "so I know. They have to blast, but they don't have to scare everybody out of their wits."

"I thought a lady was going to faint here the other day. What the blasts are doing to the corner of the Parliament Buildings I couldn't guess. I'm scared to go up and see."

IT COSTS MORE

He said the blasts occur about 5.30 each night. "Instead of one big blast, they should use more little ones. But they won't do it, because it costs more."

But a spokesman for Chew Excavating said that "we have done all we can to reduce the noise. We've been minimizing our shots as much as possible."

"Lately the shots have been smaller; all the big work is finished."

He said blasting should continue for "at least two weeks, and possibly a month."

Greater Victoria School Board trustees will meet in August with Saanich council members to smooth out conflicting views on school board spending.

Board chairman J. W. Porteous said Thursday that he and Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis have agreed on the meeting, with the date yet to be fixed.

An exchange of criticism began this week. Saanich council recently approved a resolution to the Union of B.C. Municipalities, seeking appointment of a municipal councillor to school boards to provide liaison and keep an eye on spending.

Sunshine Camp In Final Year

A camp that outlived its usefulness will probably be put up for sale, an official of the Family and Children's Service said Thursday.

Sunshine Camp, a Sooke landmark since 1929, will probably be closed after this summer, according to Gordon Wright, executive director of the service.

"We're not going out of the camping business," said Mr. Wright. "It's just that we feel we should spend the money a bit differently."

SITE NOT IDEAL

"Sunshine Camp is not now up for sale," he emphasized, "but you can say that the board of directors has been giving it a lot of thought."

"Sunshine Camp is by no means ideal, although it has been good in the past. The trouble is that the area has grown up, become largely residential, and no longer really suitable for camping."

As the nature of the camp changed, so did its residents. Back in 1929 it was started for young girls, but lately the main users have been old age pensioners—and they haven't been using it very much.

ADULTS' RESORT

"It has bit by bit become a sort of adults' resort-type camp," said Mr. Wright, "and this isn't really what we want."

"We're looking for an area with good swimming and hiking facilities."

"As things stand now, the children in our care don't even go there. We would like to get a program that's more closely tied with the aims of our agency."

ANOTHER SPOT

"Last year there weren't even enough pensioners out there to fill one of the eight camping periods," said Mr. Wright.

"Camp Columbia, the Anglican Church camp over on Thetis Island, would be ideal for these people. Perhaps they could run for a week or two over there. I don't think they'll have much trouble finding another spot."

War on Speeders Starts

Saanich police department plans a crackdown on speeding drivers.

"We will begin an all-out drive on the part of this department to apprehend speeders and cut the ratio of accidents on our streets," Chief Bert Pearson said Thursday.

He added: "We intend to use radar at every opportunity. All offenders will be summoned to court."

Tuesday and Wednesday two Saanich officers took the department's radar car and spent a total of 11 hours doing spot checks throughout the municipality.

TWENTY-ONE TICKETS

Altogether 21 speeding tickets were issued.

Between Jan. 1 and June 30 of this year 118 persons have been injured in Saanich motor vehicle accidents, four of them fatally.

Biggest number of offenders are between 16 and 25 years old. They have caused 37 per cent of Saanich motor vehicle accidents this year, figures show.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: You said in a column recently that a mother who streaked her 16-year-old son's hair with peroxide was off her rocker. I think maybe you are off your rocker, Granny. I am a boy, 17, and it so happens that I streak my own hair and it looks great.

My hair used to be a mess, dull brown. Now, girls who never knew I existed come over to me and tell me they think my hair looks terrific. In fact, a couple of the girls call me the "Blonde Bomber."

From the picture of you in the paper I would like to suggest that you do something with your hair. It looks terrible. — FORMER READER.

Dear Former: So the girls call you the "Blonde Bomber." What do the boys call you?

If you want to put your hair up in curlers it's all right with me, Bub, and it may even attract more attention than the streaks.

Dear Ann Landers: We have five children who are normal, healthy and well-behaved, thanks to the firm handling of my husband and my own belief that parents need not take any sass or nonsense.

Sunday we were visiting at the home of my husband's brother and his wife. They have three boys who do as they please. There isn't one piece of furniture in their home that isn't broken. The floors are scratched because the kids slide in their golf shoes. Helen has been punched in the wall by kids on the tricycles.

The 17-year-old asked my husband if he could take his shoes off and walk in them. My husband said no. The boy asked, "Why not?" My husband replied, "Because my shoes are not toys." The youngster then said, "If you don't let me I'll sock you." My husband said, "You'd better not." The boy struck my husband in the back with his fist and ran to his father. My husband got up and gave the child a hard smack on the rear.

The boy's father was furious. He shouted, "You have no right to strike my son. If you want to beat your own kids, that's your business, but our children are not accustomed to violence."

An argument followed and we left on strained terms. My husband has your opinion. Frankly, I have mixed emotions. Please direct your remarks to my husband. Thank you.—Q.T.

Dear Q.T. I have only two words for your husband. Heartiest congratulations.

Dear Ann Landers: I am concerned about our grandson. My daughter says it is just a "phase." I'm not so sure. Please tell me what you think about a 13-year-old boy who has a deep-seated fear of germs.

Frank washes his hands for at least 15 minutes before each meal. He scrubs up like a surgeon, then uses an antiseptic lotion. The boy refuses to carry out the garbage for his mother because he is afraid of being contaminated. He will not shake hands when introduced unless he is forced by someone who grabs his hand. I can't tell you the hours he wastes washing things that don't need to be washed. He refuses to use the telephone until he has wiped the mouthpiece with an antiseptic solution.

My daughter says Frank is just overly clean. I say it's more complicated. Please state your views — CONCERNED GRANDMOTHER.

Dear Grandmother: My views would probably carry no more weight than your views. Here then are the views of three psychiatrists.

The boy's preoccupation with cleanliness is out of proportion to reality. He is sick and needs professional help.

London Styles Sexy

LONDON (Reuters)—The London fashion line deserted subtlety for blatant sex appeal Wednesday at autumn couture collection, perpetuating the silky tube that has emerged.

Young-style couturier John Cavanagh wrapped his models in narrow woollen coats with eyebrow-brushing fur collars and fitting dresses that billowed out below the hips in flounces or unpressed pleats.

His suits hugged the figure, then released it into knee-baring whirl skirts that swung from front gathers.

Cavanagh's luxurious tweed coats fell narrowly from stand-up mink collars and squared shoulders to a tapered hem.

The most dramatic was in scarlet figured silk with white mink collar, worn with a red leather crash helmet.

A daytime version in white textured tweed has a nose-covering collar of russet fur. It was worn with one of Reed Crawford's saucy little Persian fur berets.

Day dresses were equally dramatic with slinkily fitting sleeves and hip-length bodices above skimpy gathered skirts.

For evening Cavanagh used tubes of black jersey over tufts of matching tulle or silver embroidered lace, swirling from below the hip bone.

In complete contrast to his arrow-narrow, full-length evening suits and dresses in rich ruby or pink brocade and velvet, he produced the only formal trouser suits so far in the London collections.

Their long camel jackets fastened high at the neck and topped narrow pants.

The changing glamour of the collection lasted right through to his show-stopping wedding dress—a roll-colored tube of gold lame with glittering gold veil.

Michael, the ex-architect couturier, known for his uncompromising cut, sketched and fitted his impossible-tweed suits to show the figure.

His black-and-white herringbone suit with widely blocked shoulder line and jacket indented below the bust was typical of the shape of the collection.

Narrow skirts ending on the knee gained fullness from two front pleats.

Jaunty hats by Graeme Smith took their inspiration from the French Foreign Legionnaire's cap and from a crash helmet, complete with goggles.

at the ceremony for the former Donna Jean Baird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Baird, 887 Easter Road, and the son of Mrs. John Garside, 4159 Birches Avenue.

Mrs. Lynn Davies, soloist, sang the Lord's Prayer during the ceremony and O Perfect Love during signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor-length gown of crystal organza styled on empire lines and accented with French lace embroidered with acorns and pearls. The sarong waistline extended in a lace peplum in back from which fell a detachable train embroidered in lace to match the gown. A tiny floral cluster of stephanotis held the bride's tiered silk illusion net veil and she carried a bouquet of white gladiolus and pink roses. Her only jewelry was a single strand of cultured pearls and matching earrings, gift of the groom.

Maid-of-honor Miss Betty Baird, the bride's sister, was in a floor-length gown of pink organza over silk. Mrs. P. Howe, bridesmaid, and Miss Karen Garside, junior bridesmaid, wore similarly styled gowns to the maid-of-honor's in shades of turquoise and yellow respectively. They all wore headpieces of self-fabric flowers and veils to match their gowns and carried white roses and carnations.

Mr. Fred Garside was best man for his brother. Ushering were Mr. Turrence Davies and Mr. Gordon Hansen.

Twelve members of Victoria Girls' Daff Team formed a guard of honor on the church steps for the bride party as it left the church.

Mr. Maurice Gurney proposed the toast to his niece at a reception which followed in Rinkwood House. An attractive arrangement of pink roses in a low bowl against a background of tall candelabra and baskets of gladiolus and carnations decorated the head table.

Mrs. Davies sang the Hawaiian Wedding Song at the reception. Before leaving the bride presented her wedding bouquet to her grandmother, Mrs. H. Gurney of Yucalpa, Calif.

For travelling the new Mrs. Garside chose a demi-train suit of pink worsted wool trimmed with peau de soie. She wore a pink hat and white accessories.

The engagement is announced of Pamela Anne, elder daughter of Mrs. Paver, 2632 Mt. Stephen Avenue, and the late Mr. E. A. Paver, to Mr. Thomas Macdonald Claridge, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Claridge of Shelbourne, Ont. The wedding will take place at 8 p.m., Saturday, Aug. 28, in St. John's Anglican Church. (Miss Paver's photo by Ronald's Studio; Mr. Claridge's by Le Roy Toll, Toronto)

Wed in Summerland

A wedding of interest here took place recently in St. Stephen's Anglican Church in Summerland when Miss Patricia Lemoine Hansen became the bride of Mr. Daniel Martin Paterson.

Rev. Norman Tanner performed the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Hansen of Summerland and the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Paterson of Victoria.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a full-length lace dress topped with redingote of pure silk and styled with lily-point sleeves and full, chapel train. Her bouffant veil misted from a coronet of pleated satin and she carried a nosegay of baby yellow roses. Her only jewelry was a pair of heirloom moonstone pins belonging to her maternal grandmother.

Miss Sharon Hansen of Edmonton was maid of honor for her sister, and a cousin, Miss Margaret Hansen of Calgary was bridesmaid.

They wore full-length gowns of blossom pink silk, Empire style, and carried nosegays of white chrysanthemums. Their headpieces were matching silk crowns with short circular veils.

Mr. Brian Wilson of Victoria was best man and ushering guests to the pews were Mr. Donald Shea of Victoria and FO Robert Christie of Chatham, N.B.

After a reception at the home of the bride's parents, the young couple left on a honeymoon at Banff and Jasper. Coming away the new Mrs. Paterson wore a white knit import suit, American Beauty satin burban and white accessories.

They will make their home at the White Sands Apartments in Vancouver.

Victorians going to interior for the wedding were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Cotton and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Pelland and family, Mr. A. E. M. Cotton, Miss Margaret Paterson, Mr. and Mrs. John Magnus, Mrs. Lyle Newton and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hart of 1055 West Burnside Road are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary today. They were married in Winnipeg, Man., 50 years ago. Mr. Hart, who was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1890, came to Canada when he was five years old. His wife was born in Dundee, Scotland, coming to Winnipeg in 1907. Mr. Hart served with the CORCC Canadian Railway troops from 1915 to 1917, at which time he transferred to the Royal Flying Corps and became a night flying pilot. On return to Canada in 1919 he re-entered service with the CPR as roadmaster until his retirement in 1955. They have four daughters, Mrs. C. A. Miller, Burns Lake; Mrs. Orval Pohl, Springdale, Sask.; Mrs. Lorne Campbell, Philadelphia, Pa., and Miss Molly Hart, Victoria, and four grandchildren.—(Robin Clarke)

Piano selections were played by Mrs. Florence Acreman.

The honored guest and her party sat beneath a cascade of pink streamers. In front was a white paper wedding cake topped with a miniature bride.

The refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth, and long stemmed roses formed the floral motif.

Gifts were passed to the bride-elect by her sister, Miss Corinne Hughes and little Stacey Ripley.

Miss Daphne Mount, Allan Holmberg and George Eng, all Soke Spring Island High School students, left Monday for Montreal to spend two weeks as part of the Centennial Student Travel Exchange Program.

Mr. and Mrs. James G. Breull have returned to their home on Avondale Road following a three-and-a-half week trip to Ontario. While in the eastern province, Mr. and Mrs. Breull visited Toronto, Windsor, Oshawa, Kitchener and Beaverton. Returning with them were Mrs. Breull's two aunts, Mrs. M. Ball, Windsor, and Miss A. Shuttleworth, Toronto. They will visit in Victoria until next week.

Pink Roses In Bride's Bouquet

Centennial United Church was decorated with baskets of daisies and hydrangea in blue and white tones, when Dr. S. Parsons officiated at the quiet ceremony uniting Judy Dale and William John Goddard in marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. R. J. Comeau, Victoria, and A. W. Murphy, Sidney, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. H. Goddard of Truro, Cornwall, England.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of beige raw silk, styled with a silk-fabric over-blouse attached at the shoulders. She complemented her ensemble with a floral hat and accessories in tone and carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and carnations.

Her only attendant, Miss Sandra Rawnsley, chose a two-piece suit of turquoise linen. Her headpiece was a pillbox edged with veil on tone, and she carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white roses and carnations.

Best man was Michael Brown.

A two-tier wedding cake, topped with a vase of pink roses, centered the bride's table for the reception following in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

Mr. Brown proposed the toast to the bride.

Following a honeymoon trip up Island, the couple will make their home at 202 Carrick Street.

Gold Keg Beer makes merry with the tough old salts of Bristol.

Cmdr. John Buck, RN (ret'd.) and his old shipmates spice the mainbrace with Gold Keg.

Bless'em.

In Bristol there are dozens of old pubs that are favoured by ex-Navy men.

Grand beerdrinkers all. During Operation Gold Keg we spent many an hour in these pubs, testing Canada's celebrated Gold Keg Beer on the old salts.

Who, of course, loved it. You see, Gold Keg is brewed with men in mind. Men who love a hearty, mellow kind of beer. A deep-flavoured beer.

So it's no surprise that Gold Keg is making friends all over England. And it's no surprise that Englishmen (bless 'em) compare it to their favourite English beers.

Why don't you try Gold Keg for a change? It's a grand brew for a man who likes beer.

Bless you.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENCKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

How critical should we be of bridge big-leaguers? Even though it is a fact that the West's proposition that the most championship players should be judged by the most exacting standards, you might be distinguished to fault West for the way he handled this deal. But first take his cards and see if you can do better.

You don't get rich by keeping quiet on a hand like West's, especially when striving for a berth on a World Championship team — so most experts would endorse the gambling double. They would also approve West's choice of opening lead — the trump ten — since a lead of the wrong ace might present declarer with an easy ride. But when, after the trump lead, declarer rattled off three more rounds of trumps and shifted to a small diamond, West was faced with a tough problem to which he failed to find an answer.

West elected to play low to the diamond lead, whereupon South won with dummy's queen and led the spade king from the table, pitching his diamond king. Later declarer had no trouble taking the winning point in clubs, and the club king was a precious entry to the two high spades. Declarer thus added four tricks in the plain suits to his seven trump tricks, and he wrapped up a doubled overtrick.

Had West gone in with the diamond ace, he could have removed the vital dummy entry by shifting to clubs; eventually the defenders take a total of three club tricks as well as the diamond ace. But though this deal came up in an international trial, not every thought West was at fault for missing the winning defense. Some kibitzers called the play of the diamond suit "impossible," since it establishes the entire diamond suit if South holds K-x-x. Others, less charitably inclined, pointed out that if declarer held K-x-x, there would be no way to beat the hand, for West would never be able to make more than his three aces.

Nude Body Found In Grass

By ANDY BIGG

PORT ALBERNI—The nude body of Violet Martha Jones, 16, Nanaimo, was found at 7:40 a.m. Thursday hidden in grass near the CPR round-house.

Marie Rivard

Rivard Bond Boosted

(From AP, CP)

The bond set for Lucien Rivard of Montreal, under indictment in Laredo, Tex., for alleged complicity in a multi-million-dollar smuggling racket across the Mexican border was increased Thursday to $500,000 from $150,000 in Houston.

Rivard, 50, charged in connection with a huge narcotics ring, was flown from Montreal to the United States Thursday following an extradition order issued at Ottawa.

WIFE WITNESS

Meanwhile, Marie Rivard, 33-year-old shapely wife of the racketeer suspect, was jailed in Ottawa Thursday night after being arrested in Montreal as a material witness in the Raymond Denis bribery case.

Bail for her release was set at $5,000, and she was placed in custody at the city police station while her lawyer arranges to collect the bail money.

HEAVILY GUARDED

Rivard was surrounded by heavily-armed police Thursday when taken from Quebec Provincial Police headquarters in downtown Montreal and whisked in a four-car police motorcade to Montreal International Airport.

He was escorted aboard an RCMP twin-engine plane which took off in a few minutes.

Its immediate destination was said to be Pittsburgh, N.Y., a few miles south of the U.S.-Canadian border.

Victorians today braced themselves to wait out a mail workers' strike that is rapidly hobbling the entire province and much of Canada.

The strike that spread to Victoria Thursday brought a slow realization of the inconvenience, expense and frustration of life without the mails. Without a break in the deadlock the strike will likely produce near-paralysis of many normal activities.

Mail delivery in most of B.C. stopped completely or was reduced to a trickle Thursday by a solid strike of postal workers at the Vancouver clearing house.

In Victoria, the postal wheels started slowing Thursday noon when a delegation of Vancouver mailmen set up a picket line around the downtown post office. Local postal workers refused to cross the line.

Last night they voted 183 to 46 in favor of striking, despite an earlier decision to await instructions from national headquarters of the Postal Workers' Brotherhood.

Union members claimed none of their 260 membership of letter carriers and clerks had crossed the Vancouver picket line to report for two earlier shifts, starting at 4 p.m. and 6 p.m., which normally handle the dispatch of city and outgoing mail.

After last night's meeting, Jack Bell, president of the Victoria branch of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers, denied suggestions that the picketing here "blackmailed" city workers.

"Vancouver was only trying to make its strike more effective by sending pickets here," he said.

"It would have been deplorable for our workers to have crossed the line of their own brotherhood."

His Honor's Pen Quicker Than Eye

MONROE, Wis. (AP)—County Judge James W. Rice now is in a position to advise, with heightened accuracy, right on signing documents before reading them carefully.

His honor hastily scribbled his name to a series of small-claims documents presented by court clerk Eleanor Austin, including an order directing himself to provide his staff with sweet rolls "or other refreshments for the morning coffee break each morning for the rest of the month."

Room at Tory Top

Sir Alec Bows Out

LONDON (CP)—Insisting to the end the decision was his own, Sir Alec Douglas-Home.

the tall, lean Scot who failed to gain national popularity, suddenly bowed out as Conservative leader Thursday, paving the way for a younger chief to take over next week.

Balloting among the Tory members of Parliament will take place secretly next Tuesday and the choice appeared to be a toss-up between big, heavy-set Reginald Maudling, 48-year-old foreign affairs spokesman, and the more formidable fighter, 49-year-old Ted Heath, the financial critic.

Bookies Say It's 6-4

For Heath

LONDON (Reuters)—Edward Heath was quoted Thursday night as a 6-to-4 favorite for the Conservative party leadership by Ladbrokes, a leading firm of London book-makers.

Close behind came Reginald Maudling at even odds, followed by Iain Macleod at 20 to 1.

Others in the betting were Christopher Soames, 25 to 1, Sir Edward Boyle, Quintin Hogg and Selwyn Lloyd, 40 to 1.

Enoch Powell, 100 to 1, Duncan Sandys and Peter Thorneycroft, 200 to 1, were longshots.

Men Ignore Union, Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal cabinet reacted to the growing postal strike Thursday by naming a special committee, curtailing some types of mail and warning strikers to get back to work.

The developments here:

● Prime Minister Pearson announced that a three-man cabinet committee has been set up to recommend action to keep the mail flowing and cope with the wildest strike of postal workers at some 30 centres.

● The new committee, made up of Postmaster-General Tremblay, Revenue Minister Benson and Solicitor-General Penneil, announced that all third- and fourth-class mail (printed matter such as advertising circulars and parcel post respectively) will be shelved, second-class mail (including newspapers and magazines) will be stopped in areas hit by strikes, and the U.S. will be asked to stop its third-class mail entering Canada.

● Mr. Benson told a press conference "demands by the strikers are not going to be granted through these strike actions—we're going to await a decision by the independent commissioner."

● Mr. Tremblay issued a statement later calling the strike "illegal." He listed 41 cities and suburban municipalities where all mail except first class letters will not be accepted for the duration of the strike.

Mail Piles Up Coast to Coast

Toronto Adds Weight To National Tieup

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Metropolitan Toronto's 1,200-member letter carriers' local has voted in favor of joining letter carriers in Vancouver, Montreal and other centres in strike action for increased pay.

Members of the Toronto local of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers (FALC) voted Thursday night 583 to 177 in favor of tying up mail delivery services in the metro area at 5 a.m. EDT today for the first time since 1924.

JOIN OTHERS

They will join other Canadian postal workers in an unauthorized strike that already has put out 1,200 workers in Vancouver, clearing centre for most of British Columbia, 4,100 in Montreal and more than 1,400 others in Ontario. Postmen at seven other B.C. centres, including Victoria, were also on strike.

Meanwhile, in the Atlantic provinces, normal mail services were reported at Saint

John, N.B. However, postal officials there said that while they were accepting all classes of mail for these provinces, only first-class mail would be handled for areas affected by the strike.

In Moncton, workers decided Wednesday night to wait until today before calling for a full membership vote on whether to support strikers in other places. Elsewhere in Ontario, the coveting Canada's water resources should consider moving to Canada, Attorney-General Bonner of British Columbia suggested Thursday.

Mr. Bonner said in an interview the federal-provincial conference had taken note of certain U.S. proposals in which Americans "appear to covet Canadian resources."

Canadian water resources were a growing attraction to the increasing population in the U.S., he added, and the U.S. was Canada's second biggest source of immigration.

"I think the answer to the U.S. water difficulties is for more Americans to become Canadians."

Signs of Times?

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Sleepy residents, on their way to work Thursday, wondered what was going on at the Windsor post office.

And, striking postal workers, arriving at 8 a.m. at the city's main post office for picket line duties, also wondered.

office were men with signs reading: "Liberty, the heritage of all men"; "Man's dignity is from God"; and "A denial of human rights is a denial of God who gave those rights."

A spokesman for the strikers explained that the strike decision came so quickly that the Windsor branch of the Canadian Postal Employees Association had not had time to prepare appropriate signs for the pickets.

So a hurried call was put in to the Windsor Labor Council. All they had to offer were some signs left over from this year's May Day parade—which had racial equality as its theme.

Residents Want War on Cougars

COBBLE HILL — War on cougars is being declared by anxious Island residents.

There is alarm over the increase in the number of cougars in the area, and the hunters are given an annual retainer as expenses, plus a bounty for every cougar the hunter is called upon to shoot.

A letter to recreation minister Kenneth Kierman will suggest the government appoint supplementary hunters in the area, and the hunters are given an annual retainer as expenses, plus a bounty for every cougar the hunter is called upon to shoot.

A letter will be written to agriculture minister Frank Richter asking the government to bring in legislation to compensate farmers' losses through cougar-killed live stock.

Frequent sightings of cougars in this area is enough to cause concern and we should demand immediate action from the government departments concerned.

That comment was made by Robert Strachan, MLA for Cowichan-Newcastle where the cougars have been seen.

He attended a meeting here Wednesday, when 14 residents discussed the cougar problem, and what can be done to curb it.

Mrs. Harold Leader presented a petition to the meeting. The petition contained 500 signatures asking for a return to bounty hunting of cougars.

The petition will be forwarded to the department of recreation and conservation, with a suggestion that if bounties are not the answer, something else must be done.

Mr. Strachan asked every person in the district who has seen a cougar to telephone Mrs. Leader.

Retarded Camp Successful

NANAIMO — Five day camp has just ended at Acadia Island, near Campbell River, and Moorecroft, Nanaimo Bay, for 38 Vancouver Island mentally retarded people.

Organizing the two camps were Edith Hibbs, Nanaimo; Mary Palmer, Campbell River; and Mrs. Gordon Buck, Ladysmith.

This was the first time a camp for the mentally retarded had been held on the Island, and organizers experienced no problems, with everyone having a good time.

Both camp sites were donated by the United Church of Canada, and all labor was volunteered. At Moorecroft, Nanaimo High School students undertook the counselling under the direction of Frank Murphy.

Retardates from age four to 45 took part in the camp with Nanaimo, Duncan, and Ladysmith represented at Moorecroft, and Port Alberni, Courtenay, Comox and Campbell River at Acadia Island.

Truckers Want to Pass Rate Hike to Shippers

The freight rate increase levied recently on truckers by the B.C. Ferries may be passed on to shippers—and Island consumers eventually—a trucking industry spokesman said Thursday.

He indicated the industry would apply to the Public Utilities Commission for a rate increase of approximately 15 per cent. The recent ferry freight rate boost amounted to about 20 per cent.

Captive Namu Near Qualicum

QUALICUM BEACH—Captive killer whale Namu and tugs pulling his floating pen moved to Qualicum Beach Thursday.

Seattle aquarium owner Ted Griffin, his two tugs, his 22-foot killer whale moved from nearby Denman Island.

Arrival time in Seattle now is estimated at Monday or Tuesday.

While the tugs slowly tow the world's only captive killer whale south, the argument about feeding the beast rages on.

Washington State Fisheries director Thor Tollefson, who said Wednesday Namu would have to surrender his salmon diet when he becomes an American, said Thursday in Olympia something less drastic may be arranged.

After talking with a lawyer representing the aquarium, he said a written request for permission to feed Namu his 200 pounds of salmon daily will be given consideration.

Washington law says salmon can be used for human consumption only, and plans were being made by the aquarium to persuade Namu to eat herring.

Queenswood Studies Dissolution

NANAIMO—Queenswood sewerage district is considering dissolution, and amalgamating its system with Northfield Improvement district.

No definite decision was made at the district's annual meeting Wednesday in the Northfield community hall, but the move is expected to be made after red tape is surmounted.

The Queenswood sewer district is at Quarterway, and it was formed before Northfield Improvement district started to provide sewers.

Northfield already supplies Queenswood with water and fire protection.

Connection fees in Queenswood are $25 with another $25 every year as a service charge.

Trustees elected from among the 29 property owners on the system were Terry O'Neill, three-year term; Ted Duchan, two-year term; and W. Weisner, one-year term.

Owner-electors will probably have a second referendum put before them in the fall.

The referendum which was presented to the voters in June, sought $300,000 for additional accommodation, and vital equipment for the new curriculum, additional classrooms and future school sites. It was turned down.

DILEMMA
The school board claims that either the facilities required for the new curriculum will be provided by re-submitting the referendum and having it approved, or some of the Grade 12 students in 1968 will have to enroll in high schools outside this district.

The curriculum for senior secondary schools in British Columbia has been completely reorganized and will be taught for the first time to students entering Grade 11 in September.

Fuller Report Cards Asked by Trustees

NANAIMO—School board has asked that more comment be given to parents on students' report cards.

The request came at Wednesday's board meeting from chairman William Lerch.

FULLER COMMENT
He asked principals to make sure individual teachers make fuller comment on students' progress, when preparing report cards.

Also at the meeting: The board decided leaders were too high on a medical room and staff room planned for South Wellington School. Lowest tender submitted was $30 a square foot, or $2,100 for the whole project. Alternate plans will be studied.

KINDERGARTEN
The board will consider possible establishment of kindergarten, in preparing the next referendum.

The board will no longer welcome new teachers at a big reception each year. Members felt the affair has become too large to be effective.

Board members recently visited 100 Quebec students camping at Gyro park, and three boxes of fruit were donated to the visitors.

Pickets in Nanaimo, Alberni

Mail Services Evaporating

Mail is frozen at Nanaimo and in the Alberni Valley, as mailmen, whose feet for years have pounded postal beats, march up and down in front of post offices.

And mail at all points on the Island not directly hit by the strike is expected to slow to a trickle as the strike takes hold in major centres.

At Duncan there are no mail carriers, but an official of the inside workers said Thursday they will wait until Monday to hear word from their national executive.

STRIKE VOTE

If they have not been told to go out on the picket line by then, they will meet Monday and take a strike vote.

Pickets were on duty at 6 a.m. in Nanaimo; Jim Dimetroff, president of the carriers' local, said the picket will be maintained around the clock.

"Mail trucks come in during the night," he said. "We are receiving 100 per cent support from the public."

'EXPECT TO WIN'

Dimetroff said "we expect to win, and we're all in good spirits. We're not here to cause any trouble, and we've no objection to the public going into the building to check on their mail."

Inside the quiet post office Mike Gordi, postmaster, answered questions from residents anxious about their mail.

NO MAIL COMING

Mr. Gordi said "There is no point to residents who normally have their mail delivered coming to pick it up. There is no one to sort mail, and none is coming in anyway."

Teamsters and rural route delivery trucks are respecting the Nanaimo picket line.

'LOSING BATTLE'

The post office is trying to accommodate widows and old age pensioners who normally receive cheques through the mail, but Mr. Gordi said: "We're fighting a losing battle."

He said he is amazed at the grace with which the public is accepting the situation.

Local businesses are having problems. Companies which usually receive payroll cheques from Vancouver are trying to make other arrangements.

COURIER SERVICE

The Imperial Bank of Commerce will set up a courier service if the strike continues past the weekend.

In Alberni and Port Alberni pickets were on duty at post offices at 3 a.m. Thursday.

"Everything is going according to plan. I am very happy with response from the public," said union official Harry Clark.

JUST SUPERVISORS

Mayor Les Hammer, postmaster for Port Alberni, and supervisory staff, were the only people in the Port Alberni post office Thursday. One supervisor was in the Alberni branch.

All postal clerks obeyed the picket line.

Thursday morning a mail truck arrived and the Teamsters' union member driving the vehicle stayed on the street outside the post office without crossing the picket line.

UNLOADED TRUCK

Supervisory personnel unloaded the truck and moved in relay to carry mail from the truck into the post office at Port Alberni.

Alberni Valley Labor Council will assist the postmen by helping to man a 24-hour picket.

Mr. Clark said Alberni Valley mailmen will act strictly in accord with policy being set by the Vancouver local, in connection with old age pensioners, widows, and disabled who are expecting pension cheques.

Magistrate Thrown For Loss

DUNCAN—Magistrate of ten judges, but seldom loses. However a local magistrate was well-beaten here recently.

Magistrate Lance Heard, a member of Duncan Judo Club, took on one of Japan's great Judo fighters, Nagashi Taki Ukyu, who holds a black belt.

This tall Mr. Ukyu will teach his art at U.B.C. He has lived in Canada for a year, and recently gave a short exhibition at the Duncan club.

Fisheries Hunt New Fish

NANAIMO—Biological Station at Departure Bay is providing technical personnel for exploratory trawling work being carried out this summer to locate new stocks of commercially important groundfish.

The experiment has been branded a "preliminary success" by officials.

A fisheries department trawler sailed July 10 for the east coast of the Queen Charlotte Islands, carrying men and gear from the Nanaimo station.

LOCATED STOCKS

The trawler worked in depths from 38 to 55 fathoms, and located commercial stocks of grey cod seven miles northeast of Reef Island.

Hauls of 7,000 pounds were taken in 10 minutes.

Important stocks of brill were located in the same area. Surveys located several more commercial stocks of these species in the same general area.

Sampling and tagging are being carried out to identify the stocks and routes of migration.

Wilds Call Family

ALERT BAY—The call of the wilderness has attracted an Indiana family to this area, to "homestead in the wilderness."

Arriving here in a few days by small boat will be David Stafford and his wife, both 31, and four children and two dogs.

Mr. Stafford is a 31-year-old machinist who left Elwood, Ind., because it's "just a H.I. ole town with too much folks in it."

He bought a steel-hulled lifeboat at Seattle, installed a 25-horsepower engine and built a superstructure of plywood and tarpaper.

It's cost him $500.

"We'll put into Alert Bay," he said. "We're going to homestead some Crown land—just fish and hunt and have a good time."

Island School Trustees Plan Strategy Meeting

Island school trustees gather in Victoria Saturday to discuss salary policies and resolutions to this fall's meeting of the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

The Saturday meeting will take place in Craigdarroch Castle. Present will be J. M.

Rivard Bond Boosted

(From AP, CP)

The bond set for Lucien Rivard of Montreal, under indictment in Laredo, Tex., for alleged complicity in a multi-million-dollar smuggling racket across the Mexican border was increased Thursday to $500,000 from $150,000 in Houston.

Rivard, 50, charged in connection with a huge narcotics ring, was flown from Montreal to the United States Thursday following an extradition order issued at Ottawa.

WIFE WITNESS

Meanwhile, Marie Rivard, 32-year-old shapely wife of the racketeer suspect, was jailed in Ottawa Thursday night after being arrested in Montreal as a material witness in the Raymond Denis bribery case.

Bail for her release was set at $5,000, and she was placed in custody at the city police station while her lawyer arranges to collect the bail money.

HEAVILY GUARDED

Rivard was surrounded by heavily-armed police Thursday when taken from Quebec Provincial Police headquarters in downtown Montreal and whisked in a four-car police motorcade to Montreal International Airport.

He was escorted aboard an RCMP twin-engine plane which took off in a few minutes.

Its immediate destination was said to be Plattsburgh, N.Y., a few miles south of the U.S.-Canadian border.

Victorians today braced themselves to wait out a mail workers' strike that is rapidly hobbling the entire province and much of Canada.

The strike that spread to Victoria Thursday brought a slow realization of the inconvenience, expense and frustration of life without the mails. Without a break in the deadlock the strike will likely produce near-paralysis of many normal activities.

Mail delivery in most of B.C. stopped completely or was reduced to a trickle Thursday by a solid strike of postal workers at the Vancouver clearing house.

In Victoria, the postal wheels started slowing Thursday noon when a delegation of Vancouver mailmen set up a picket line around the downtown post office. Local postal workers refused to cross the line.

Last night they voted 132 to 46 in favor of striking, despite an earlier decision to await instructions from national headquarters of the Postal Workers' Brotherhood.

Union members claimed none of their 260 membership of letter carriers and clerks had crossed the Vancouver picket line to report for two earlier shifts, starting at 4 p.m. and 6 p.m., which normally handle the dispatch of city and outgoing mail.

*****

After last night's meeting, Jack Bell, president of the Victoria branch of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers, denied suggestions that the picketing here "blackmailed" city workers.

"Vancouver was only trying to make its strike more effective by sending pickets here," he said.

"It would have been deplorable for our workers to have crossed the line of their own brotherhood."

MONROE, Wis. (AP)—County Judge James W. Rice now is in a position to advise, with heightened sincerity, against signing documents before reading them carefully.

Sir Alec Bows Out

LONDON (CP)—Insisting to the end the decision was his own, Sir Alec Douglas-Home,

the tall, lean Scot who failed to gain national popularity, suddenly bowed out as Conservative leader Thursday, paving the way for a younger chief to take over next week.

Balloting among the Tory members of Parliament will take place secretly next Tuesday and the choice appeared to be a toss-up between big, heavy-set Reginald Maudling, 48-year-old foreign affairs spokesman, and the more formidable fighter, 48-year-old Ted Heath, the financial critic.

Thrust into the Tory leadership as a compromise in the great Tory feud of 1963, Sir Alec, the 14th Earl of Home whose family goes far back in Scottish history, was prime minister for a year until socialist Harold Wilson, the pipe-smoking economist, led Labor to victory nine months ago.

All through the months as Opposition leader, Sir Alec, who gave up his earldom when he took over the party, had been harried by the British press and by a number of Tory backbenchers who felt he should step down. Opinion polls showed he was no match for the debating power of Prime Minister Wilson.

LONDON (Reuters)—Edward Heath was quoted Thursday night as a 6-4 favorite for the Conservative party leadership by Ladbrokes, a leading firm of London bookmakers.

Closely behind came Reginald Maudling at even odds, followed by Iain Macleod at 20 to 1.

Others in the betting were Christopher Soames, 25 to 1, Aid Edwards Boyle, Quintin Hogg and Selwyn Lloyd, 66 to 1.

Enoch Powell, 100 to 1, Duncan Sandys and Peter Thorneycroft, 200 to 1, were longshots.

● Mr. Tremblay issued a statement later calling the strike "illegal." He listed 41 cities and suburban municipalities where all mail except first-class letters will not be accepted for the duration of the strike.

Toronto Adds Weight To National Tieup

Metropolitan Toronto's 1,200-member letter carriers' local has voted in favor of joining letter carriers in Vancouver, Montreal and other centres in strike action for increased pay.

Members of the Toronto local of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers (FALC) voted Thursday night 563 to 177 in favor of tying up mail delivery services in the metro area at 5 a.m. EDT today for the first time since 1924.

JOIN OTHERS

They will join other Canadian postal workers in an unauthorized strike that already has put out 1,200 workers in Vancouver, clearing centre for most of British Columbia, 4,100 in Montreal and more than 1,400 others in Ontario. Postmen at seven other B.C. centres, including Victoria, were also on strike.

Meanwhile, in the Atlantic provinces, normal mail services were reported at Saint

John, N.B. However, postal officials there said that while they were accepting all classes of mail for these provinces, only first-class mail would be handled for areas affected by the strike.

Water-Seekers Urged To Become Canadians

OTTAWA (CP)—Americans coveting Canada's water resources should consider moving to Canada, Attorney-General Bonner of British Columbia suggested Thursday.

Mr. Bonner said in an interview the federal-provincial conference had taken note of certain U.S. proposals in which Americans "appear to covet Canadian resources."

Canadian water resources were a growing attraction to the increasing population in the U.S., he added, and the U.S. was Canada's second biggest source of immigration.

"I think the answer to the U.S. water difficulties is for more Americans to become Canadians."

Signs of Times?

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Sleepy residents, on their way to work Thursday, wondered what was going on at the Windsor post office.

And striking postal workers, arriving at 8 a.m. at the city's main post office for picket line duties, also wondered.

Parading outside the post office were men with signs reading: "Liberty, the heritage of all men"; "Man's dignity is from God"; and "A denial of human rights is a denial of God who gave those rights."

A spokesman for the strikers explained that the strike decision came so quickly that the Windsor branch of the Canadian Postal Employees Association had not had time to prepare appropriate signs for the pickets.

So a hurried call was put in to the Windsor Labor Council. All they had to offer were some signs left over from this year's May Day parade—which had racial equality as its theme.
